Pattern Of Warfare As Waged By Japs Begins To Unfold

Wainwright Looks On As First Blood Is Shed by Doomed Defenders of Northern Luzon

This is the fourth of General Jonathan M. Wainwright's touching series of articles on the fall of the Philippines and his own shocking captivity. In today's installment the tall, spare hero of Bataan and Corregidor tells of the all-but-uncontested Jap bombing raid on Clark Field, near his post at Fort Stotsenburg, and he sees the first of the copious bloods his unprepared and doomed North Luzon force was destined to shed.—EDITOR.

There were many things to do on the morning that hell broke loose. If I had ached before that, for better trained men and the proper tools, now the want was beyond ache.

I had planned to see MacArthur within the next day or two to be sure that he realized just how unprepared we were in north Luzon, how low we were in everything that goes to make up a man's army.

But now that the word of Pearl Harbor had come from Manila, I knew I would soon be moving north, not south to see MacArthur. So I told Johnny Pugh that I would make a list of the things I needed from MacArthur, and send him to Manila to try to get them.

I sat in my room writing that list, during the predawn of the first day of war. The phone rang twice while I scribbled. Each call brought progressively worse information. The 4:50 a.m. call from Pete Irwin told me that the battleship line at Pearl Harbor, and our big Hickam Field air base, had been heavily bombed. A little after 5 o'clock Pete called again to say that Admiral Hart had received another message from Admiral Kimmel advising Hart not only that a state of war with Japan existed but instructing him to "govern yourself accordingly."

The latter phrase, I think, referred to a plan the Navy must have had to withdraw its larger surface

On "Holiday"

Local Miners Delay Action Till Week-End

More than 300 Edmonton district miners decided at a postponed meeting held in the Social Credit hall 9974 Jasper avenue, Thursday afternoon to postpone until Sunday afternoon any announcement of their intentions to terminate their "protest holiday" against meat rationing which commenced on October 1st.

No word had been received up to the time of the meeting as to what action had been taken by miners in the Drumheller and Crows Nest Pass fields following the recent announcement by the government that certain meals were to be placed on the ration free list while others were moved from groups "C" and "D" to "E", which meant that larger quantities of these meats were to be available.

A letter was read to the meeting

Statement Filed

U.S. Approval Of Refunding Plan Awaited

Having filed a statement with the United States Security Commission and completed details of bond registration in connection with refunding, Deputy Attorney-General H. J. Wilson, KC. and Provincial Auditor C. K. Huckvale, have returned to Edmonton from New York City.

Mr. Wilson said that the work of registration was in connection with the sale of $26,000,000 of new Alberta securities to United States purchasers.

DECISION AWAITED

A period of about 20 days must elapse from the date of filing of the statement until the decision of the commission is given on the refunding plan to the Alberta government.

After approval is secured from the commission an order-in-council must be passed by the Alberta cabinet before the refunding plan is technically operative.

The 75 per cent of the $113,200,000 involved in the bond refunding to make the plan operative has already been passed to was announced recently by Premier Ernest Manning. Only approval of the U.S. Security Exchange Commission and the Alberta cabinet order remain as necessary steps to complete before the plan goes into operation.

Mr. Wilson said he expects the remaining steps to be completed within the next 10 days.

While in the east the Alberta officials visited Ottawa where they conferred with Dominion authorities on taxation matters.

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—(CP)—The Dominion government today took control of Burns & Co. packing plants at Winnipeg, Prince Albert, Sask., Regina, Edmonton and Vancouver to a move to avert a strike. Labor Minister Mitchell announced in the Commons today.

J. G. Taggart, chairman of the Meat Board, has been appointed controller of the plants by an order-in-council, and his authority became effective at noon today.

"The Dominion government acted swiftly when it became apparent that strike action was contemplated for Monday, Oct. 15," Mr. Mitchell said in his statement to the Commons.

ACTION EXPLAINED

The government's action had been explained to the management of the plants and to Fred Dowling, Canadian director of the United Packinghouse Workers (CIO), and A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

The order-in-council requires that the company and the union shall proceed with negotiations toward a mutually satisfactory settlement of the dispute without delay in accordance with regulations," Mr. Mitchell said.

One or more commissioners will be appointed to assist in the negotiations and it is likely deputy controllers will be appointed for each branch plant.

MOVE NECESSARY

Government action had been necessary to prevent "the grave consequences which would result from any interruption of meat shipments to Britain and other European countries."

"Even if Canada succeeds in keeping up the present volume of supplies there is a danger of many lives being lost this winter through starvation in Europe," Mr. Mitchell said.

"A breakdown in the negotiations between employers and employees in respect of working conditions in packing plants, which would develop into a stoppage of work, would not only create a national emergency but would be considered by most Canadians as little less than criminal.

H. Thompson, Anderson, manager of the Burns & Co. plant at Edmonton, said that he had received word that the plants were being taken over by the Dominion government. He added that he had not received any official notification of the intended government action after taking control.

Mr. Anderson said there was nothing untoward at the plant today. The men "are on the job as usual." He said he didn't know how government control would work out "As I've never had that experience before."

John Langlet, representative of the United Packing House Workers of America, a CIO affiliate, said the government's proposed action was not unexpected.

WOULD DELAY ACTION

If the action is taken to obtain a settlement of the differences between company and the workers it will delay strike action, but if the move is to keep the plants working without attempting to bring about a settlement of the workers' demands on the company then the strike will likely be carried through. Until the general situation is clarified it is not possible to state definitely the action that will be taken by the workers.

John Wallin, western representative of the Packing Plant Employees Union, a Trades and Labor Congress of Canada affiliate, said the proposed government action was good news, and might be a means of averting strike action. He said the whole situation arising out of the pending government action would be discussed at an executive meeting as soon as the situation was clarified.

Union officials of the other large plants are following the dispute with mounting interest, and it is expected they will hold strike votes if it develops that employees of Burns are ordered by their union to strike.

NO AGREEMENT

John Wallin, vice-president of the Packinghouse Workers' Butchers' and Allied Food Workers' Union (TLC-AFL), stated Friday the employees of Swift Canadian Company, Edmonton, had been attempting to negotiate for a 44-hour week, eight-hour day and time-and-a-half for overtime, but that they had been unable to find a satisfactory agreement. The AFL ma

"Drew Gestapo"

Probe Findings Reject Claims By CCF Leader

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Premier Drew and his Progressive Conservative government were absolved last night in a Royal Commission report by Mr. Justice A. M. Lebel of "establishing a secret political police office as charged by E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader.

Mr. Justice Lebel found that the charges, made in the June 4 Ontario election campaign, "were specific with respect to deliberate and wilful acts of wrongdoing by Mr. Drew and his government" and "I have concluded there were no such deliberate and wilful acts."

Mr. Jolliffe named Constable William J. Osborne-Dempster of the provincial police as head of the secret political police organization he said had its headquarters at 18 Surrey Place, near the government offices at Queen's Park. It developed later that his information came from Constable John Alvin Rowe, who for a time was assistant to Osborne-Dempster.

Cut in Taxes

Country Awaits Budget Address Coming Tonight

By R. K. CARNEGIE

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—(CP)—The country is awaiting hopefully today for any reduction in income and other taxes in the budget which Finance Minister Ilsley will bring down in the Commons tonight.

Various forecasts have been made about what the budget might contain, including these possibilities:

1. Some reductions in income taxes which possibly might not, however, take effect until the end of the present calendar year.

2. The 10 per cent excise tax now in force against a broad list of commodities imported from other than empire countries might be lifted.

3. The list of goods exempt from the eight per cent sales tax might be greatly increased.

CLOSE SECRET

All these forecasts have been conjecture because the actual terms of the budget tax changes always remain a closely-guarded secret until the finance minister speaks in the House.

Usually, the budget is brought down during the spring or early

New Legislation Sought as Strikes Spread in States

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The wave of post-war labor disputes across the United States brought congressional reaction today as leaders of both Republicans and Democrats went on record favoring new anti-strike legislation.

As new and continuing work stoppages kept the idle across the country at a total of 452,000, prominent legislators said they favored repeal of the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act which permits strikes if unions vote in favor of them. They said they wanted new legislation which would make labor unions and employers "mutually responsible" for observance of contracts.

Gets Fined $1,000 For Fatal Beating

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A merchant marine lieutenant, John J. Lynd, who admitted he fatally beat the man he suspected of making love to his wife while he was at sea, has been fined $1,000 and placed on seven years' probation. "Some men walk away from such a situation," commented the judge. "Others want to kill their wives, and others take it out on the interloping male. It's a tragic situation and none of us knows what we'd do if confronted with it."

Clothesline Thief Is Lodged in Jail

A determination to uphold his rights against robbers Thursday afternoon led Robert H. Cahoon of 9629 110 avenue to capturing a clothesline thief who was making off with some of Cahoon laundry. Police arrested Dmitro Pakuloc after Cahoon had chased him from his home to the corner of 97 street and 111 avenue, holding him there until police arrived. Pakuloc was said to have had three apron-and two handkerchiefs in his possession when apprehended.

CALGARY, Oct. 12.—After four years imprisonment, two of them spent slaving in Japanese industrial plants, 45-year-old Pte. Nick Hawliuk is on his way home to his Andrew farm.

The Hong Kong veteran who enlisted at Edmonton in July, 1941 stopped off in Calgary Thursday evening on the way home, and agreed that "it was pretty tough, I'll tell you", as a Japanese prisoner. He left for Edmonton on the Thursday midnight train.

During his imprisonment he was stone deaf, because of the concussion from three Japanese bombs which dropped within 16 feet of him on Hong Kong on December of 1941, but failed to injure him otherwise. He regained his hearing three months ago, shortly before he was liberated.

He was 178 pounds when he went to Hong Kong and left it as the Americans liberated him Aug. 20 from a camp near Yokohama, he weighed

Flees London Hall

Officer Mobbed When Unable To Give Brides Sailing Date

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(Reuters)—Cmdr. H. Agar, special assistant to the United States Embassy, was mobbed yesterday when he told a group of wives of Canadian and American servicemen in Caxton Hall he was unable to name a date on which they could sail to join their husbands.

The wives "feeling pretty sick" about the lack of transportation to take them across the Atlantic, staged a protest meeting in the hall.

Things got out of hand earlier when it was found the hall was much too small for the number of servicemen's wives, nearly 1,000, who turned up.

LEAVES BYSIDE DOOR

But as the chairman, pretty dark-haired Mrs. F. Rhodes of Manchester put it, they tried to be "dignified about this." A resolution was adopted urging that immediate steps be taken to provide transport.

Cmdr. Agar told the gathering: "A lot is being done but in terms of what you want to hear—the date when you can go home—there is no answer."

As the meeting ended Cmdr. Agar was mobbed by those in the hall and had to leave by a side door.

Many wives who were unable to get in stood outside the building, singing, "We want ships."

Want 40-Hour Week

City Packing Plant Workers Vote 381 to 20 for Strike

About 400 employees of Burns and Company's Edmonton meat packing plant voted Thursday night in favor of strike action aimed at obtaining a 40-hour work week and a 30 per cent increase in hourly wage rates. Decrease in the hourly rates was said to be necessary in order to keep weekly wage receipts approximately at their present level.

Also included in the packinghouse worker's demands were pay for statutory holidays; two weeks' paid vacation after one year's service; three weeks' paid vacation after 15 years' service and one month's paid vacation following 20 years' continuous service.

Decision of the local packers will be wired to the Toronto headquarters of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO) along with the results of similar votes in Burns' plants at Vancouver, Prince Albert, Regina and Winnipeg. The Calgary plant of the company is organized in the Trades and Labor Congress and the American Federation of labor and therefore not included in the four-province vote action.

SIMILAR ACTION

If results of the total vote taken in the five Burns' plants favor a walkout, swift action of a similar kind is expected in all the major meat packing plants across the Dominion, and would mark the

Naval, Air Establishments Abolished

Free Speech Restored To Japanese

From CP, AP and British UP Dispatches

HEADQUARTERS ALLIED ARMY OF OCCUPATION, TOKYO, Oct. 12.—Abolishing all restrictions on freedom of speech and assembly and completing the dissolution of home naval and air fleet headquarters in compliance with the directives issued by General Douglas MacArthur as Supreme Allied Commander, Japan today took the first faltering steps towards democracy.

Free speech and assembly were restored to the Japanese people through the repeal of the so-called peace preservation laws under which the notorious "thought" police acted. At the same time the cabinet also abolished laws setting up fortified zones within the home islands.

That the whole constitution of Japan will be revised appears evident. Today Dr. Soichi Esaki, honorary professor of Kyoto Imperial University and leading authority on the Japanese constitution, was appointed adviser to Marquis Koichi Kido, the highest ranking consultant to the Mikado. This appointment was taken as a preliminary move to sweeping constitutional reforms.

NEW DIRECTIVES

Announcement of the appointment quickly followed new Allied directives for Women's suffrage, encouragement of labor unionization, abolition of "secret inquisition" systems, revisions of monopolistic industrial control and advancement of liberal education.

The food shortage confronting Japan also received the serious consideration of the government today.

The government asked MacArthur's headquarters for permission to convert two naval drome into pits for the production of salt.

summer but this year it was delayed by the June general election.

Mr. Ilsley likely will announce what the government plans to do about the excess profits tax and say when the refundable portion of the excess profits tax already paid into the treasury will be turned back to the taxpayers.

Progressive Conservative Leader John Bracken announced yesterday that J. M. Macdonnell, member for Muskoka-Ontario and former president of the National Trust Company, will be the financial critic of the official opposition and in that capacity will follow Mr. Ilsley in the budget debate.

MAY SPEAK FRIDAY

Mr. Bracken's statement said that Mr. Macdonnell probably would speak briefly Friday night and reserve the main portion of his speech until the debate is continued Oct. 23. Mr. Bracken said Mr. Macdonnell was chosen because "of his advanced and progressive ideas and long experience in the business."

The adjournment in the debate will enable Mr. Ilsley to make his western tour in connection with the new loan campaign.

The minister will start his tour in Winnipeg Oct. 15 and will speak also in Regina, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria. He will be back in Toronto to speak Oct. 22, the day the campaign actually gets underway. This will enable him to be back in the house Oct. 23.

M'Arthur Fears Loss of "Face" In Front Japs

By MURLIN SPENCER

TOKYO, Oct. 12—(AP)—The Russian plan for a central control council to rule Japan would cause Gen. MacArthur to lose "face" among the Japanese and impair his usefulness, sources close to the Supreme Allied Commander declared yesterday.

"Unquestionably it would cause confusion," one informant said. Whether Gen. MacArthur would resign under such circumstances was not known, since he has never discussed the matter with anyone.

These sources put the problem this way: Gen. MacArthur as the supreme commander has been issuing orders to the emperor, and the Japanese who must carry out his orders realize he is boss.

WOULD "LOSE FACE"

But should a council take over—or even if it only was on equal terms with the General—Gen. MacArthur would to the oriental mind lose face. Much of the work already done would be undone.

On the other hand, the creation of the Far Eastern advisory commission as announced Wednesday by State Secretary Byrnes was interpreted as having no effect on Gen. MacArthur's status as supreme commander. Mr. Byrnes indicated he was not in favor of the Russian plan, which thus far has not been considered by President Truman.

Asked if Gen. MacArthur would accept an invitation to appear before the Far Eastern Commission in Washington, one source said Gen. Marshall could order him to return to the United States to testify this month.

Headquarter sources insisted the enforcement of the Potsdam declaration was proceeding as fast as possible; that Gen. MacArthur did not want to issue orders faster than the Japanese can assimilate them.

Burns' Plants

now adopted the same demands sought by the Burns' employees, he said.

Depending on the outcome of the strike vote of the Burns' plants his organization would seek to have their grievances settled by the arbitration board. If nothing resulted from this "proper" method, an independent strike vote would be contemplated.

Some 5,000 members of Local 195 of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO) at Windsor last night decided to seek permission of the UAW international executive board to call out an additional 8,000 union workers in 33 Windsor automotive and feeder plants in sympathy with 10,000 Ford workers, members of UAW Local 200, who have been on strike for a month over a collective bargaining agreement.

Almost simultaneously with the threat of new walkouts at Windsor came a ray of hope for early settlement of the Ford strike. Union officials in Toronto said they would meet Labor Minister Mitchell in Toronto Monday to seek settlement and added that steps would be taken to permit company officials to go through the picket lines to obtain files and documents necessary for the conference with Mr. Mitchell.

Votes in favor of strike action by meat packers in the Winnipeg, Edmonton, Regina and Vancouver plants of Burns and Company in support of a demand for a 30 per cent wage increase raised the possibility that 12,000 workers in packing plants across the nation might walk out. Workers at Prince Albert, Sask., also voted last night but the result was not immediately announced.

Demands by the meat packers will be discussed today in Ottawa by Labor Minister Mitchell and Fred Dowling, national director of the Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO).

Yesterday Mr. Dowling said in Toronto that a general strike in all five Burns and Company plants would "follow automatically" a strike vote result favoring a walkout. The Packinghouse Union announced yesterday that it had sent letters to Canada Packers and Swift Canadian officials asking for a meeting before Oct. 19, and, unless a favorable reply is received, workers in plants operated by those two companies will take a strike vote.

SUPPORT DEMANDS

Workers in Swift Canadian company plants at Moncton, N.B., members of Local 244 of United Packinghouse workers of America (CIO) have voted to support demands of the western meat packers.

Included in the demands of the Burns employees in Edmonton were pay for statutory holidays, two weeks' vacation with pay after one year's service, three weeks' paid vacation after 15 years' service and one month's vacation with pay following 20 years' continuous service.

It was learned at Winnipeg Thursday night that workers at the Canada Packers Plant at Suburban St. Boniface will take a strike vote next Wednesday and production employees at the Winipeg plant of Swift Canadian will take a strike ballot the following day.

Decision of the coal miners at Blairmore, Alberta, to remain on strike in protest against their allotment of meat indicated that the whole 9,000 western mine workers would continue to strike. Although local unions of the miners were told Thursday to return to work, their decision was said to hinge on the action taken by the Blairmore men who were originators of the strike.

"Please Send Us Home"
Brides Plan See Premier

LONDON, Oct. 12—(CP)—A small number of impatient brides of Canadian servicemen said yesterday they planned to make a personal protest to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, now in London, over the delay in arranging shipping accommodation to enable them to join their husbands overseas.

This group, who attended a protest meeting of wives of Canadian and United States servicemen yesterday in Caxton hall, included Mrs. Betty Perry, wife of former CSM. John Perry of Fort William, Ont., who said the girls were ready to travel on cattle boats or "strapped to the wing of a plane."

"Only please get us to Canada," she added.

Mrs. Perry said she and her friends will approach Mr. King for a personal interview on behalf of thousands of British girls waiting to get to their new homes, in an effort to solve the problem of insufficient shipping space.

Probe Findings

gaged in a conspiracy to maintain the government in power, Mr. Jolliffe charged. Among those named were Premier Drew, Osborne-Dempster, Gladstone Murray, Toronto policy counsel, M. A. Sanderson, a businessman who often published political advertisements, and George McCullagh, president of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

The findings were in three sections, one dealing with Mr. Jolliffe's charges, another with the activities and conduct of members of the Ontario provincial police and the third with the manner in which the CCF leader came into possession of secret documents.

Among the conclusions on Mr. Jolliffe's charges were:

That the work of the special or anti-sabotage branch of the provincial police established in 1938 or 1940, was continued by Osborne-Dempster after the Drew government took office in 1943 although it was not brought to the attention of Attorney-General Blackwell.

NOT IN CHARGE

That Osborne-Dempster was never placed in charge of the Surrey Place office in the sense that he reported directly to Police Commissioner W. H. Stringer "much less to Mr. Drew or Mr. Blackwell as Mr. Jolliffe charged."

That there is nothing in the evidence that connects Premier Drew even remotely with Osborne-Dempster or his work "other than the Peppin incident".

There was nothing beyond the receipt of 41 of his reports to show that Mr. Blackwell knew of his identity or the nature of his work. However, "I believe that Mr. Blackwell should have found time to discuss the reports with Commissioner Stringer before dismissing them as of no importance".

(Mr. Peppin testified at the commission hearing that he had some difference with the Workmen's Compensation Board and that Osborne-Dempster told him he had written to Premier Drew about it.)

UNWARRANTED ACTIVITY

That Osborne-Dempster did not "wilfully gather false and misleading information with respect to any person" and that "except for his unwarranted activities with respect to the CCF party" he tried to perform his work to the best of his ability.

That it was "highly improper and inexcusable" for Osborne-Dempster to collaborate with Mr. Sanderson in the preparation of political advertisements and to have typed for James C. Suydam, office manager for Mr. Murray, a document intended to be used to embarrass Mr. Jolliffe at an election campaign meeting in Aurora. But there was no evidence to show that Premier Drew or members of his cabinet knew of these activities and associations.

That Osborne-Dempster was guilty of serious breaches of police regulations and that his actions "deserve unqualified condemnation." But in fairness "I should add that nothing was disclosed in the evidence to support the assertion made by Mr. Jolliffe that Dempster's background was 'untrustworthy and sordid.'"

NOT A WHITEWASH STATES JOLLIFFE

TORONTO, Oct. 12—(CP)—E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, issued a statement today saying that a royal commission report of Mr. Justice A. M. Lebel is "by no means a whitewash" of his charges that the Drew government established a secret political police.

The report made it clear that the special branch of the provincial police collected reports on opponents of the government, and that the material was "improperly supplied to anti-CCF propagandists who were campaigning with the Conservative Party."

"Thus, many of the facts so hotly denied, during the election campaign, have been established by evidence and confirmed by the commissioner's report."

Local Miners

from Donald Gordon, Ottawa, chief of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in which the relaxation of ration restrictions on certain types of meat were outlined.

OFFERS SUGGESTION

The miners' demand for an increase in the amount of cooked meat available for sandwiches in lunch boxes was met by the trade board official with a suggestion said to be favored by mine operators that "sandwich bars" be opened near to mines at which the men could leave their lunch buckets for filling when they came off shift, to pick them up again filled when they returned to the pits.

The meeting felt that while such a suggestion was practicable in such concentrated fields as Drumheller and some of the Pass camps, in the Edmonton district where mines are smaller and somewhat scattered it could not be made to work.

Charles Ripley, Edmonton member of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, District 18, who attended the Calgary week-end meetings of that governing body and Peter Collins, Edmonton secretary of the union, urged that the miners accept the suggestion of the executive and return to work, while the union carried on with its negotiations with the rationing authorities, but men at the meeting were not satisfied that the demands for which they had walked out were being met.

FUTILE EFFORT

The decision to postpone any action until the Sunday meeting came after futile efforts by the chairman to have the discussion completed, had failed. The members were largely resolved not to move until word had been received of the reaction of the southern miners, although some of the local workers felt that the Edmonton group should not always follow the lead of the other locals.

Some union members felt that those men with families had sufficient meat, but others indignantly demanded to know if their children were to be condemned to sit still and watch them eat all the meat.

Miners present included a group from the Coal Branch mines.

among the short food items in Japan. The airdromes are at Yokosuka and Okeya-Gun in Fukuoka province.

It also asked that ships bringing repatriated troops from four Chinese and Korean ports be permitted to load 210,000 tons of salt there for ballast.

The newspaper Asahi said other serious food shortages also were confronting the government. It estimated that the Japanese rice crop might fall to 10,000,000 bushels compared with the all-time previous low of 10,200,000 bushels last year.

Asahi said the Japanese should have at least 12,900,000 bushels for mere subsistence.

Rains also damaged the sweet potato crop, on which the government had been depending as a substitute for rice. The national agriculture society estimated that the Japanese people will be forced to exist on a daily diet of only 850 to 1,200 calories per capita. It said laborers normally require 3,000 calories a day and other persons should have 2,400.

Kenji Kodma, chief of the government liason bureau for co-operation with MacArthur's headquarters said that the government plans to ask permission to import rice and other foodstuffs from Indo-China, Korea, Formosa and Siam.

Detailed plans covering methods of payment and transportation are being worked out, he said.

Japan, which has a critical shortage of fuel, has also asked permission to import 120,000 tons of oil from the United States. The government told Gen. MacArthur it was prepared to pay for it with 46,000 bales of raw silk. No answer has been given.

The overall food situation was worsened by the typhoon which swept over central and southern Honshu this week, destroying crops and doing considerable damage over a widespread agricultural area.

Two Amendments

United Nations Agriculture Program Debated in Commons

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Two amendments to a bill authorizing Canada to join the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization were accepted in the Commons last night.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, and M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, were agreeable to sit beyond the 11 o'clock adjournment hour in order to pass the bill, but John Blackmore (SC, Lethbridge) opposed the suggestion, saying there were articles he wanted to discuss at length.

Most important of the amendments was one drafted by Justice Minister St. Laurent and John Diefenbaker (PC, Lake Centre).

The amendment would limit the powers of the cabinet to passing such orders-in-council as were necessary to carry out the provisions of the organization's constitution.

RESTRICTED POWER

Under the original clause of the bill, the cabinet would have been unable to pass orders-in-council to carry out the provisions of the constitution and the recommendations made by the organization.

Under the change the recommendations made by the organization will take the form of legislation and be submitted to the proper legislative body whether federal or provincial.

The amendment was drafted after Mr. St. Laurent said that an amendment moved by Mr. Diefenbaker to the clause would be unacceptable. Mr. Diefenbaker's amendment would have required Parliament's approval within six months of any action taken by order-in-council in connection with the organization.

Mr. St. Laurent said that such action would mean to other nations that any undertaking made by Canada would not be irrevocable until approved by Parliament.

Another amendment moved by Mr. Diefenbaker was accepted.

It simply inserted a clause saying that Parliament had accepted the constitution of the organization.

Mr. Bracken said adoption of the food organization 'constitution by the house meant giving the organization free reign to determine its budget. He asked if the house should commit itself to unlimited expenditure.

Mr. St. Laurent said no Canadian expenditure could be made without first going before parliament but he added that the constitution must be accepted.

DEBT OF HONOR

Mr. Coldwell said it was a case of Canada accepting a debt of honor. It was a case of accepting or rejecting the constitution.

Mr. Bracken said he feared Parliament might be charged with voting blindly and pointed out that no definite amount was set in the organization's budget which might be between $2,000,000 and $5,000,000.

Mr. Blackmore then rose and said the constitution should not be accepted blindly and in fact should not be accepted until the government had shown to what advantage it was to Canada to accept the constitution.

Earlier, with few reservations, spokesman for all parties in the commons approved Canadian participation in the food and agriculture organization, first of the international functional agencies affiliated with the general plan of a United Nations set-up to come into active operation.

PROTEST DETENTION.—San Francisco women are protesting the detention by immigration authorities of Mrs. Marjory Weyland, who arrived there recently as a stowaway aboard the SS Lurline. She is the Australian war bride of Sergt. Lon Weyland of Hot Springs, Ark.

BEGINS TUESDAY

That operation begins at Quebec Oct. 16 when the interim body hands over the organization to a permanent set-up with a constitution aimed at creating machinery for raising nutritional standards in all countries and providing more stable markets for food products.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner moved for second reading of the bill to approve Canadian participation. The reservations were expressed by Progressive Conservative and Social Credit speakers.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, said he thought the bill provided too great powers for the government, involved too much of a delegation of parliamentary functions in that it authorized the government to do all things necessary to carry out the international agreement.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, also said he questioned whether the bill did not confer too much power but he also was concerned on whether it would create a "force outside Canada which would compel Canada to do certain things." Pending further information he reserved a decision on how he would vote.

AUTOMOBILE STRIKE

When the house opened Labor Minister Mitchell announced parties to the Ford strike at Windsor had been invited to meet in Toronto on Monday and pending the meeting he had asked the union to consider withdrawing pickets from the company's offices.

In presenting the FAO bill Mr. Gardiner said the organization "will concern itself with studies of production and marketing as they relate to food, agriculture, forestry and fisheries. It will endeavor to promote research work having to do with a solution of these problems.

"It will assemble and distribute official data and promote the development of information that can be co-ordinated internationally," he said. "It will serve the interests of both producers and consumers and function as an organization representing food, agriculture, fisheries and forestry in international deliberations with other international organizations of the United Nations."

TEND TO DICTATORSHIP

Mr. Bracken said he disliked the growth of bodies responsible to no democratic assembly. They tended to become dictatorships but the world was changing and growing smaller. Canada, among other nations, had to make a choice and in his view should make some concession to internationalism.

"We support wholeheartedly the objective of this measure", said Mr. Bracken. "We do not think the government needs the wide powers contained in this bill, however, and we respectfully suggest that the government consider some limitation upon those powers".

Percy Wright (CCF-Meiford) supported the bill and predicted Canada would derive benefits from the organization 100-fold greater than the cost put into it.

Mr. Low said he questioned whether the nations of the world which had been unable by themselves to provide their own peoples with security under the present financial system could do it by banding together in an organization.

LAST MINUTE MOVE

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) complained about the agreement being presented now at the last moment after being "embalmed in the records of some government department" for two years. He thought it badly drafted, apparently copied from some bill ratifying a peace treaty with Bulgaria or Turkey after the last war.

He noted that Argentina was not a member of the organization but was one of the world's greatest food producers. "Unless something is done in that regard," he said, "Argentina will act as a threat to agricultural equality and equilibrium throughout the world."

Whatever attitude was taken in regard to Argentina during the war Argentina's co-operation was needed in post-war international economic arrangements.

Mr. Diefenbaker said if the bill was adopted without amendments parliament would never know what Canada was doing within the organization. The bill gave the government the power to pass orders-in-council to do anything it felt necessary in connection with the organization. The bill was another attempt of the government to govern by order-in-council.

The bill did not even call for the tabling of the orders-in-council.

Mr. Gardiner interjected he was prepared to accept an amendment that would require the tabling of orders-in-council.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that unless a stop "is put to this type of legislation," government members would be signing their letters as "your omnipotent master" rather than "your obedient servant."

Mr. Gardiner said Justice Minister St. Laurent, acting secretary of state for external affairs, will open the first conference and it is proposed to send a Canadian delegation, details of which will be announced later.

Stirring Them Up

Senator McGeer has evidently carried into the Red Chamber the courage and outspoken independence he used to display in the House of Commons when a member of that body for one of the Vancouver seats. His first speech in the Senate is one to which his colleagues would do well to pay attention, which it is to be hoped they will do.

The substance of what this new-comer told the old-timers is that they are not just in the Senate in order to put in time comfortably. They are members of a branch of the national legislature which the framers of the constitution plainly intended should take a serious view of its responsibilities and perform a useful function. This, Senator McGeer implied with truth, the Senate has not always—nor usually—done.

There is, he told the Senators, plenty of work for them to do. They could, for one thing, usefully study the relations between the federal and provincial Governments. Quite obviously that is a subject that will bear studying, and on which there is need that public opinion be given leadership. Senators, it may be added, are rather better situated to give the subject impersonal and candid examination than are members of the Commons or the legislatures.

There are, as Senator McGeer indicated, any number of other matters with which the Senators could deal with great advantage to the public, if they chose to get out of the rut and exert themselves. It may be surmised that if they don't get out of the rut they are destined to hear from "Gerry" again and often, in language they may not like but which the public will applaud.

There Can't Be Too Much

Those in charge of the collection report that Edmonton people are responding in the way that might be expected to the appeal for clothing for destitute people in Europe. So great is the response that the receiving depot is to be kept open evenings for the accommodation of those who are not able to bring in their bundles during the day.

This is in keeping with the fine tradition of the city, which never has failed to do its part when the call came for help, whether the need was at home or abroad. In the present case the need is beyond imagination. There are, it is estimated, 125,000,000 people over there who have neither clothing for winter, nor the means to buy it, nor the opportunity to buy it if they had the means!

No one, therefore, can feel that what he or she can spare will not be required. It can be taken as certain that winter will not find all those 125,000,000 clothed and shod properly, or even tolerably well. But every useful article of foot-wear or clothing that is contributed, whether for man, woman or child, will help to reduce the number who must face the cold half-naked.

Contributors should note the request that they divide their gifts into four groups; clothing for men, women, children, and footwear—the latter tied together in pairs. That will save time and confusion at the receiving depot, facilitate handling and speed up the forwarding operation.

—V—

School Supplies Free

Edmonton's public school board has an airplane. As it didn't cost anything there is no cause for taxpayer protests. The plane was turned over to the board by War Assets Corporation, and will be used for instructional purposes in technical classes.

It is to be hoped, and seems likely, that school boards and the directors of colleges and of universities all across Canada will likewise take the opportunity to obtain left over war equipment and put it to classroom use.

There are large supplies of this equipment, not all of it mechanical, and no better use can be made of it than in the schools. All over the world, we may be sure, young folks are and will be studying wartime products, and appropriating the fruits of wartime ingenuity for peacetime purposes.

Canadian students should be given the fullest opportunity to keep abreast of their contemporaries in other countries. Both for their own sakes and because if Canada is to make headway in international trade youth must be taught to turn out the goods.

—V—

The Blockade Doesn't Help

News that food-laden ships are lying in British ports and no move being made to unload them is not calculated to impress Canadians and other overseas people with the gravity of Britain's food situation. That the tie-up is due to a strike is not the point—a tie-up due to any removable cause would have precisely the same reaction in food-exporting countries.

Prime Minister Attlee might call this to the attention of the striking longshoremen, who seem to have overlooked it. It is worth while doing so because there is considerable resentment in Canada to meat-rationing, which was imposed for the explicit purpose of increasing oversea shipments; in fact two-thirds of the Dominion is unpleasantly close to a coal shortage on the eve of winter as the direct outcome of this effort to send more meat to Britain.

What is the use skimping consumption in Canada if the food we send to Britain isn't unloaded from the ships? Canadians are not asking themselves that question yet, but they will certainly ask it if the blockade isn't lifted soon—how, is none of our business.

—V—

Why They Are Punished

A despatch from Warshaw says that every month ten thousand Poles die from tuberculosis. The Nazis have been driven out but their evil works live after them and the extermination they plotted is still running its course. Hunger, exposure and abuse created conditions favorable for the spread of the disease and it gained headway which can only be checked in time by curative and preventive measures.

At the time when the directors of Nazism are being put on trial for their crimes it is important that the world remember that this scourge in Poland is a part of the policy which these men applied there and in other invaded countries, a policy definitely aimed to reduce non-German races in numbers and stamina. Not in order to intensify and perpetuate hatred of the criminals. But to offset any maudlin sentiment of undeserved mercy which might be aroused by the penalties which are being imposed upon them.

The perpetrators of outrage in World War I escaped punishment by organising world sympathy and trading on the humane impulses of the Allied peoples. Because they escaped, the Hitlerites were encouraged to outdo them in ferocity, to even boast that their aim was to destroy nations physically as well as politically. That must not happen again. It is simple justice, not vengeance, that is being carried out when "geopolitik" headmen and agents are shot or hanged.

—V—

Darnand, French police chief during the occupation, has been executed. Laval has been sentenced to death. Both were tried—as Petain was tried—in French courts, not before Allied tribunals. The aged Marshal was spared the death penalty only because of his years and his record in World War I. Whatever is done with the underlings, the head collaborators are being given the full measure of their deserts, so far as human justice can go in dealing out punishment befitting such crimes.

W. T. Jennings, late city engineer of Toronto, has been in town investigating the railway situation, and gave the town council the benefit of his views. He very strongly favors actual railway connection with the C and E terminus, instead of the temporary substitute of an electric railway. He suggests the formation of a company to build a railway bridge and a railway line to connect the town with the C and E, suitable grades being available. The cost would be met by the usual government grant per mile for railway construction, by a government grant toward the cost of the bridge, and by a contribution of the remainder from the town. The charter and the government grant could only be secured with the consent of the C and E Company, which holds a charter to Peace River.

A Fighting Fisherman

Editor, Bulletin: In a recent "Open Letter to the Government of the Dominion of Canada and to the Public generally" which I sent your paper and of which an edited excerpt was published in Friday, the 5th, issue, I stated "these valuable fish "sturgeon" are easily and "somewhat expensively cultivated."

Your paper published: "these valuable fish are easily cultivated."

An Ichthyologist of the experience and ability of, say, Amelia Stone cannot be obtained for the salary usually paid to a College Professor in Canada. I think you should have included the words "somewhat expensively" in your published article. No statement can posibly be more misleading on occasion than a partly told truth.

I have been trying to get sanity at work in fish culture by Ottawa for, Lo, these many years and the enclosed newspaper clipping attached will let you know how far I have got.

I like your editorials very much and have watched your efforts to get sanity at work in Ottawa on the housing shortage.

Here's hoping that you will have better luck than I have had.

I am not so deeply concerned with the fisherman as I am in food for the million. The fishermen have brought most of their troubles on themselves as the lumbermen have. The most of the fishermen have resisted and opposed almost all attempts at conservation. Restrictions on the number of yards of nets per license, size of mesh of nets, close seasons during spawning time, etc., etc., have been bitterly fought by the majority of them.

They want to be let strictly alone to do as they please and as I was told by some of them: "The Almighty will take care of the future." When trying to get steel head trout introduced into the Great Lakes I was told that "If the Almighty had intended steel head trout to be in these lakes they would have been here." With opinions like these and Lawyers in Ottawa the case is hopeless. It is without newspaper publicity. It is up to the newspapers. Do they care a hoot?

SIX LAWYERS

From the Halifax Herald

Fifteen years ago a separate Department of Fisheries was set up at Ottawa with a full-time minister at its head.

Six men have held this portfolio since that time—and without one single, solitary exception every man of them has been a lawyer. Without a single, solitary exception no one of them has been qualified by practical experience to fill this important post.

The man just appointed Minister of Fisheries is described as a "brilliant and powerful orator and possessed of a keen, analytical mind" . . . "A graduate of the University of New Brunswick with honors in Philisophy and Economics, he has been a successful school-teacher, lawyer and politician."

How It Works

Editor, Bulletin: Solar energy has been discovered and applied by engineers and plenty of production has resulted and also plenty of leisure—technological advance.

Major Douglas recognized these things years ago and saw that it would be necessary to introduce a method of dispensing these blessings in a manner involving the least amount of disruption to our existing system of production. Instead therefore, of proposing a new form of "money" such as an energy unit of value, or by nationalizing industry, he proposed to make use of the already efficient vehicle of distribution which we have (dollars and pounds) and to distribute it equitably so that the necessities of every consumer should be secured by receiving a national monetary dividend. This would confer real liberty on every individual and avoid dictatorship methods proposed by Technocracy and Socialism.

Dollars and cents can perform this distribution of goods perfectly, provided the money is distributed at the right time. That is the primal necessity. Then regulations to safeguard the liberty of the individual and protect him against the exploitation of high prices.

Therefore a "price control" would be set up which would offer the inducement of the largest turnover to the storekeeper who charged the most reasonable prices and gave the best service. Under such a scheme "free enterprise" would have an opportunity to flourish without exploiting the consumer. If the people desired to form co-operatives, either producer or consumer, there would always be this opportunity, as the receipt of the national dividend would render this much easier than it is now; and there would be a fair field and no favor to demonstrate which method is the best.

The national dividend previously mentioned would not be "something for nothing." It would simply be the money value of those goods and services which had been produced by technocracy (if you like) and for which no wages or salaries had been paid out to people to buy them with. In other words the national dividend is a non-worked-for patronage dividend paid to consumers because we need consumers to patronize our productive system in order that we may have a market for all the goods produced.

Social Credit would undertake to supply the purchasing power to carry out these objectives, and thus make the people free from want, free from fear, and free to do unto their neighbor as they would like their neighbors to do unto them.

102 Street, Edmonton.

SIDE GLANCES—"We'll be having important sales conventions some of these days and I'm all rusty on 'Sweet Adeline'!"

Four Important Points

By GRANT DEXTER

OTTAWA—There are four important aspects of the wheat problem which received only passing attention in the debate.

The first has to do with the ceiling of $1.55 per bushel.

Mr. MacKinnon, in behalf of the Government, stated frankly in his first announcement of policy on September 19 that in the existing "extraordinary" circumstances, "Canadian wheat might well command for a limited period very much higher prices in the world market." Undoubtedly he was referring to the U.S. export price which at that time was some 35 cents per bushel higher than Canada's and which has continued to rise since that date.

All the opposition parties expressed the view that the ceiling involved a "sacrifice." This sacrifice was being made in the national interest and should, therefore, be shouldered by the state, not by the wheat producers. Let the Government pay the going price to the producers, sell for export at $1.55 and make up the difference out of the treasury. The language used was general rather than specific. It might be that the opposition favors the same policy with respect to wheat sold for domestic use, which now nets the producer only $1.25 per bushel and, at that, is passed along to the trade under federal subsidy at 78 cents.

MR. GARDINER EXPLAINS THE CASE

The case for the Government policy, here, was not put either with clarity or force. To the extent that it was put at all, it will be found in bits and pieces in Mr. Gardiner's speech on September 27. Mr. Gardiner made these points:

He conceded that there was force in this line of argument but that in compensation for the loss of a higher price now, the producers have been given a five-year guaranteed floor of $1 per bushel (page 556 Hansard).

He pointed out that, "if we want to sell farm products . . . to many of these countries at the present time we must be prepared to help finance the sale of such products. . . . That does not apply to anything with greater importance than wheat, bacon, beef. . . ." In other words, the market to which Mr. Bracken and other opposition speakers referred as an "open market" is to a large extent a market created by the Canadian taxpayers who must pay for the wheat which the Government is either giving away or is selling on credit.

Mr. Gardiner emphasized, as well, the perils of pursuing today a "hold up" policy, recalling the disasters which resulted from such a policy after 1930. Having carried our Allies through the war, he said, we should not now "do anything which might cause us to destroy the good feeling which we established then."

Mr. Gardiner pointed out that in the national interest and with the overwhelming approval of the people, price and wage ceilings had been imposed in 1941. No ceiling was placed on wheat but generally the ceilings on farm products were either above the 1926-29 average (so-called parity) or were subsidized to bring them to that level.

On this basis the parity price for wheat would be $1.42 so that the wheat ceiling, like other ceilings, was now above the 1926-29 average. But neither Mr. Gardiner nor any other Government spokesman referred to the presence or otherwise of a similar ceiling on other exports. Mr. Coldwell raised the point but failed to pursue it.

The second point concerns the power of the Dominion to control prices. Mr. Gardiner by direct inference, if not by explicit statement, referred over and over again to the fact, which the opposition members appeared to have overlooked, that all the federal price control rests upon the War Measures Act and ceilings and all, will cease when this act, "goes out of existence."

No time estimate was given but it is generally put at from 12 to 18 months. Mr. Gardiner, page 522, put the limit at "six months after the war," but whether he meant the end of hostilities or the declaration of peace is not clear. In any event, when this point is reached, the floor prices act will come into force and the function of the Dominion will then be confined to the payment of Federal money—subsidies in fact, in support of any given floor price. It will then be a case of how much the Dominion is prepared to pay, not of regulating prices, imposing ceilings, spreads and the like.

The third point concerns a phrase in Mr. MacKinnon's original statement. The $1 guaranteed floor will apply to "authorized deliveries for each crop year." The government, in other words, reserves the right to impose quotas, to restrict the payment of the floor price to any given quantity of wheat and thus control the amount of subsidy to be paid by the taxpayers.

The opposition, particularly the CCF, saw in this qualification a sinister possibility that the value of the floor to wheat producers might be lessened or destroyed by restrictions on payments. They wanted a higher floor and the right of unlimited production under it. They spoke, in this regard, as a small Saskatchewan pressure group and gained no support from other sections of the country.

The last point concerns the international wheat agreement. For the past 15 years it has been the generally accepted doctrine that the only way in which stable and profitable wheat prices can be guaranteed over a period of years is by an international agreement binding the large exporting and importing countries to a common policy. The wheat pools, in particular, have been ardent advocates of such an agreement. For any one producing country to attempt to maintain prices above the world level must involve subsidies and such subsidies would tend inevitably to state control of output and, in the absence of a world agreement, to an ever-lessening share of the world market.

The record demonstrates the difficulties of obtaining such an agreement. There have been two of them—in 1933 and 1942—and neither survived the attempt to make them operative. Mr. MacKinnon's original statement plainly indicated that at least the price clause of the 1942 agreement had broken down. But under direct question by Mr. Bracken on Sept. 26, Mr. MacKinnon said:

". . . for the past eight months the Canadian government has been doing its utmost to reach some agreement with the other wheat exporting nations of the world. A conference was recently held in London at which there were discussions but the conference broke up without any decision being arrived at because of disagreement among the nations participating."

By interpolations in the course of the debate, Mr. Gardiner gave the impression that there is very little prospect of reaching an agreement. Interruptions from him along this line will be noted at page 504 of Hansard, when he remarked that efforts to reach an agreement had been going on since 1932. When he came to his final speech, however, he dealt with these negotiations in some detail. The reference here is to page 555 of Hansard. He said in part:

". . . we have not succeeded in getting any definite arrangements entered into by the five great wheat-producing countries of the world in their relationship with the great consuming countries of the world. We have had these people together; we have been discussing their problems and our problems. That has all been helpful, but when it came down to getting definite arrangements as to what the price and the acreage were to be we have always been confronted with some difficulties which have usually resulted in lack of agreement—I would not say in disagreement, but in lack of agreement."

FIGHTING FOR FARMERS BEHIND THE SCENES

The discussions, of course, have been in camera but Mr. Gardiner revealed that the position of the government throughout had been one which, if accepted, would have "satisfied the demands of farm organiaztions from one end of Canada to the other." Farm organizations, he said, wanted the price of wheat to be stabilized at $1 per bushel. But at the very moment these organizations had been insisting that Canada sign up, the only agreement upon which unanimity could be attained would have paid less than $1. That, he said, was just prior to the war. Since then, all efforts to reach an accord had failed.

The new five-year floor, said Mr. Gardiner, will give the government five more years in which to negotiate. But, obviously, he is not optimistic.

We Need an Export Policy

By J. S. C. in The Vancouver Province.

Though Canada has not been sitting in at the conference of the British and United States representatives, discussing what machinery shall be set up to take the place of cancelled lend-lease, as a friend and principal customer of both parties she has a very real interest in the outcome.

How will the changed position of Britain in the postwar world affect Canada? What can we do in the interest of both good friends? In particular, how can we best protect ourselves from taking injury in the clinches?

The questions which affect export trade and national policy have been the subject of discussion by the Canadian economist, Dr. J. R. Petrie in Canadian Business, the organ of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Before Hitler tore the world to tatters, Canada had settled down to a steady three-cornered trade with Britain and United States in which we sold wheat, dairy products, copper, aluminum, flour and lumber to Britain; pulp, paper and gold to United States, taking back from Britain textiles, iron and steel products, coal and liquor, and from United States, oil, automobiles, textiles, coal, machinery, electrical apparatus and fruit. Our trade with all other countries combined, including the Empire nations, amounted to only quarter that of our trade with Britain and United States.

Our individual trade with each of our big customers never balanced. In the year before the war we imported goods to the value of $129,000,000 from Britain, but Britain purchased goods from us to over three times that sum. Contrariwise, our purchases in United States have always been far above American purchases from us. But Britain had large investments in the United States which roughly balanced her trade account. Final adjustment of trade balances were made in New York in gold dollars by the sale of British sterling.

Alas, we can not return to that simple and delicately-balanced mode of settlement. The war not only multiplied British purchases in Canada, making necessary the gift of a billion dollars in 1942 to maintain exports, but forced Britain to liquidate her foreign securities to obtain munitions. With lend-lease cancelled she still owes sterling balances in India, the Latin American republics and the Empire nations tatalling £3,500,000,000. The old triangular form of settlement can no longer be invoked.

War has brought another complication. Workers who enjoyed high wartime pay wish to [illegible], if not increase it. Some 2[illegible] men in the automotive trade in United States are on strike for a 30 per cent wage increase. In Britain, the workers have placed a Socialist government in power pledged to nationalize the coal mines, transportation and banking. Both nations have large promises to war veterans which must be kept. Here in Canada, in addition to a demand for a reasonable old age pension, we must raise $250,000,000 a year for family allowances.

To continue our export trade with Britain and supply greater revenue for reconversion and social security, the remedy advocated by Dr. Petrie is to increase our imports from Britain by $200,000,000 to $300,000,000. In addition to assisting Britain, this would enable Britain to increase its purchases of Canadian wheat, flour, lumber, base metals, meat and dairy products.

The increase in national income would come from a formula recognized by economists, whereby it is calculated that $100 of exports provide $380 of national income.

To the layman this looks like a contradiction in terms. It works out roughly in this manner: The monies received from exports circulate as new capital through recurrent cycles, creating new wealth and employment until finally liquidated in taxes. Even then it keeps on working as the government uses it for salaries, services and public works, creating in course of time national income nearly four-fold the original sum.

Some former items of export from Britain have been favorably produced in Canada during the war periods—certain textiles for instance, which latterly we have been shipping to Britain. But economic self-sufficiency is not possible for Canada. Especially in the heavy industries there is ample scope for increased imports from Britain.

For the basic products we can sell in return there is need for intelligent government assistance—not by boondoggling, pump-priming and subsidies, but by free market for capital, removal of economic controls, tariff reductions, multilateral trade agreements, reduced taxation, vigorous trade representation abroad and support of the Bretton Woods plan.

There must be on the part of governments a determination to balance budgets, and on the part of labor a willingness to do an honest day's work for a fair day's wage.

Then Reconstruction Minister Howe might reasonably hope to see Canada's export trade which reached a peace-time high of $1,376,000,000 during the nineteen twenties, attain his announced goal of $1,750,000,000 yielding a national income in course of time of six billion dollars.

Chance To Provide Glorious Peace Given Canadians By Victory Loan

The people of Canada should now give a glorious shining peace to the boys who gave so much to present Canada with a wonderful victory, stated Don Henshaw, Ottawa public relations branch of the National War Finance committee, in a speech at a meeting of the Edmonton branch of the payroll saving section, National War Finance Committee, held in the Macdonald hotel Thursday night.

He explained the reason why the government needs another victory loan campaign, and outlined the cost of things that Canada needed four billion dollars to pay for.

THREE REASONS

Three reasons why the people of Canada bought bonds during the war were to prevent inflation, for self interest and for patriotic reasons, and, explained Mr. Henshaw, these three reasons still are as good as ever.

By putting money into war bonds people prevented inflation to a large degree and although the war is over, there is possibly even a greater danger of inflation than before, said Mr. Henshaw, and added that even now the Canadian dollar is worth about 92 cents by pre-war standards.

Speaking of self-interest, he said, "the ordinary little people of Canada, through investing their money in the bonds, now possess 7½ billions of dollars worth of Canada." This money is used partly to extend credit to foreign countries and so increase Canada's export markets, making a need for more to be produced and grown and thus helping the individual.

CAN SHOW THANKS

In regard to patriotism, Mr. Henshaw said that, during the war people gave their all to help win the struggle, and to support the gallant servicemen fighting it, but now since victory has been gained, the people of Canada can still show their patriotism and thanks by buying bonds and so enabling the servicemen to get home, re-established, and all the things that they fought for.

Chairman of the meeting, A. L. Burrows, who is chairman of the payroll saving section in Edmonton, introduced members of the executive and asked all members to give their fullest services to the campaign which opens on Monday, Oct. 22.

Mr. Henshaw was introduced by H. A. Craig, chairman of the education section. The meeting was closed with a benediction by Ald. A. Bissel, KC.

Increase Capacity Of Vets' Hospitals

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Accommodation in hospitals operated by the pensions department has increased from 3,388 beds in 1939 to 6,644 and will be further expanded by new constructions, Veterans Minister Mackenzie said yesterday in a statement prepared for delivery to the Commons committee on veterans' affairs.

Before the war the department had eight hospitals, this had since grown to 15 active treatment hospitals, seven veterans' homes, five other institutions and four pavilions attached to other hospitals.

The present construction program was designed to increase capacity within the next two years to 16,000 beds, but included in this would be about 5,000 in obsolete structures.

"I do not believe either parliament or the public have yet appreciated the extent to which medical services of the department of veterans affairs have been expanded by these new treatment regulations," Mr. Mackenzie said. "We are in effect giving a modified health insurance service to more than $50,000, or approximately one-third of Canada's male working population."

At Sept. 29, the department had 9,904 patients in hospitals. Of these, 2,399 were veterans of the First Great War, 2,098 were undischarged members of the forces and 5,238 were discharged personnel of the Second Great War.

U.S. Congress Hears Plea For UNRRA Aid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—President Truman told Congress yesterday only $20,000,000 of the United States $800,000,000 appropriation for United Nations relief remained uncommitted Aug. 31. Mr. Truman transmitted the fourth report on United States participation in UNRRA as the House of Representatives appropriations committee began closed hearings on his request for another $550,000,000 to meet "acute need and privation" in Europe this winter.

Civic, Business Leaders

Citizens' Committee Endorses Five Aldermanic Candidates

Five aldermanic candidates, representative of all phases of civic life and industry, were endorsed Friday by the Citizens' Committee.

RICE SHEPPARD

They are: Aldermen J. M. Douglas and C. E. Gariepy, K.C. Citizens' Committee nominees, whose terms expire this year and who are seeking re-election. Newcomers on the committee's slate are Percy J. Gwynne, a veteran of the First Great War and a member of an international trade union; J. R. Munro, young business man and a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Brig. Ernest B. Wilson, MBE, ED, a veteran of the recent world conflict.

Recently the Citizens' Committee endorsed Ald. R. Winslow Hamilton as its mayoralty candidate.

Announcing the slate of aldermanic candidates, Douglas Jones, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, stated that "we are confident that the citizens of Edmonton, keeping in mind the pressing need for aggressive, yet sane civic administration, and the desirability of having labor—our returned men—business, experience and youth adequately represented, will regard the committee's nominees as a very representative group, well qualified to serve on council."

TO NAME OTHERS

He said that the committee's candidates for public school board will be announced later.

Ald. M. M. Downey, who was elected on the committee's 1942 slate for a two-year term, is not seeking re-election, and announced his retirement from the civic political field last Tuesday.

He stated that he was retiring to make room on the committee's slate for a representative of the veterans of this war. He stated also that he had been elected as a South Side representative, and had now moved to the west end of the city on the north side of the river.

Ald. Douglas is a former mayor of Edmonton, and has served for several years on the aldermanic board. Ald. Gariepy was first elected to city council in 1941, and was re-elected in 1945.

LEGION OFFICIAL

Mr. Gwynne is second vice-president of Branch 24, Canadian Legion, and has been secretary of the Ex-Servicemen's Rehabilitation Committee since its inception. He is a master electrician, and is employed as projectionist by the Entwistle theatres. He is a member of International Union No. 371, IATSE.

He enlisted in the 66th Battalion in 1915 and saw service in France, being demobilized in December, 1918. NATIVE EDMONTONIAN

Mr. Munro is a native son of Edmonton. He was graduated from the University of Alberta in commerce in 1935, and had a particularly distinguished career as a student, receiving a notable list of academic awards.

On graduation from the university Mr. Munro joined his father in conducting the retail hardware and auto supply business known as Munro's Cut-rate Hardware and Auto Supplies Ltd. He took over complete management of the business some years ago on his father's retirement.

Rice Sheppard May Enter Race

Former Alderman Rice Sheppard secured nomination papers for the forthcoming municipal election Friday morning, but would not intimate whether he was seeking election as a mayoralty or aldermanic candidate.

Questioned on his intention to contest a vacancy on the aldermanic board Mr. Sheppard stated that he had not decided whether he would run at all, but would await further developments in the municipal political field.

He said he "happened to be in the vicinity of the Civic Block and dropped up to get a set of nomination papers." "I have not decided yet whether I will enter the contest or not."

Chemicals Are Used To Extinguish Fire

Chemical equipment was used early Friday to extinguish a blaze in a third floor room of the Royal George hotel, according to city police. The fire apparently originated in a down-filled mattress in the room occupied by a Dawson Creek couple, absent when the fire department stepped in, under direction of Deputy Chief J. Ferguson. G. Chettleborough, night clerk, gave the fire alarm. Damage was not extensive.

Woman Is Hurt In Hill Mishap

Mrs. Annie Wolanski, 29-year-old resident of 9825 100 street suffered bruises and abrasians to her legs, right shoulder and left hand, when she was struck by an automobile at 101 street near the curve of McDougall Hill, city police said Friday.

The driver of the car was Thomas E. Powers of 11020 86 avenue, police said. The accident occurred about 4:30 p.m. Thursday. The injured woman was rushed to the Royal Alexandra hospital by Jack Hays' ambulance.

Powers told police he was driving up McDougall Hill and rounding the curve onto 101 street when the woman stepped off the curb on the east side of the street. As she crossed the road, she stopped, looked at the approaching car and then appeared to step back, directly into the path of the auto.

Police said the woman was thrown about six feet to the pavement.

Will Speed Return

Queen Elizabeth To Carry Canucks

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(CP)—The giant British liner Queen Elizabeth will sail for Canada within 10 days with Canadian troops and will go on regular Canadian repatriation service, it was announced today, raising the possibility that by the end of 1945 almost half of the army personnel still in Europe will be home.

A month ago the overseas strength of the Canadian Army was estimated at 192,000, of whom 20,000 were occupation troops. Most RCAF and Naval personnel are already home.

If the Queen Elizabeth made five trips by the year's end, almost half of all Army personnel still due to be repatriated presumably would be back in Canada.

The announcement was made a few hours after Alfred Barnes, minister of war transport, announced in Commons that the Queen Elizabeth and Acquitania, both of which have been carrying United States troops to New York, would henceforth be used for "British" personnel.

Headquarters stated only a few days ago that repatriation of Canadians during October and November would be slowed due to a lack of shipping. The likelihood now is that there will be a speed-up.

CARRIES 17,000 MEN

The length of the Queen's North Atlantic service was not stated but it was reported unofficially at headquarters she would be carrying Canadians until the end of the year. That would provide passage for probably 75,000 troops.

The Queen Elizabeth's capacity as a troopship is close to 17,000 men and in service to New York she has frequently carried an entire division.

The 2nd Canadian Division presumably will be the first troops to be sent home aboard her as most 2nd Division units now are in the United Kingdom awaiting transport.

The French liner Ile de France, on Canadian repatriation service for some months, is scheduled to sail Monday or Tuesday with the last of the 1st division.

No One Is Injured As Vehicles Crash

No one was injured in the collision at 8 a.m. Friday between a light sedan and a truck from the city engineer's department, near the intersection of Kingsway and 109 street, according to the city police traffic squad.

Police said a small car, driven by Robert Cherot of Edmonton was headed southeast on Kingsway, while the truck, said to have been driven by V. E. Smith, 11150 66 street was headed in the opposite direction.

Smith is believed to have made a left turn, not seeing the other car. Cherot swerved right, police said, but was struck in the middle by the truck and rolled over to one side.

The car was extensively damaged.

R. V. BELLAMY

Govt. Registrar Soon to Retire

Registrar with the Alberta department of education for some years and a former prominent Edmonton business man, Ralph V. Bellamy plans to retire shortly from his government post, it was learned Friday.

Mr. Bellamy said he will probably be a candidate for alderman at the forthcoming civic election next month, although he declined to state which group, if any, he will be identified with.

The provincial government official is no newcomer to civic politics having served six years as an alderman and six years as school trustee in previous civic administrations.

Mr. Bellamy took a most active part also in the pioneer days of Edmonton's growth from a remote prairie outpost to the latter days as a highly important business centre.

Temperature Low During September

According to records at the Edmonton meteorological office last month was a cold September, but not the coldest on record.

Mean temperature for the month was 48 compared with a normal of 50.5. The highest mean temperature was recorded in 1938 when it was 59.9, and the coldest September was in 1926 when the mean temperature was 41.7.

While there was only a trace of snow this year in September the normal fall is one inch, but winds were stronger, averaging 10 miles an hour compared with the normal of 8.

The direction of the winds may have had something to do with the lower temperatures. This September the prevailing winds were from the northwest, while they are usually from the south during that month.

Nick Nycholychuk of 12039 Fort Trail was in an unhappy predicament Thursday night following the theft from his home of a cook stove, a bed and a mattress. The complainant told police he returned home about 3 p.m. to see a small yellow truck driving away from his residence. He found the articles gone when he entered his house.

Strong Appeals Made

Mass Meeting Urges Jews Be Admitted to Palestine

Strong appeals to the British and Canadian governments for removal of all restrictions on immigration of Jewish people to Palestine and abolition of the terms of the British government white paper that stands in the way of widespread movement of Jews to their homeland, were made at a public mass meeting in the Masonic Temple Thursday night attended by more than 600 persons.

More than 150 persons were unable to secure seating accommodation in the main hall of the temple.

Resolutions, passed without dissenting votes, were dispatched to Prime Minister Clement Attlee of Great Britain and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS

J. Percy Page, MLA, was chairman, and speakers, all of whom supported the plea of the Jewish people for making entry to Palestine an open policy, included:

Premier Ernest Manning, Elmer E. Roper, MLA, D. E. Cameron of the University of Alberta, Dr. W. E. Wershof, president of the Zionist Council of Edmonton, Rev. B. Stainton of the Edmonton Ministerial Association and others.

John Dower, Western Canada vice-president of the Zionist organization, was among prominent Edmonton Jewish representatives present.

All speakers stressed the fact that the Britsh government white paper of 1930, which limited Jewish immigration to Palestine to a mere trickle, is in direct contravention to the Balfour Declaration of 1917 that pledged the Jewish people in all countries that they would have a homeland in Palestine.

APPEASEMENT MOVE

The white paper was described by speakers as another appeasement move by the late Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

"Appeasement on this matter should come to an end at once. Appeasement never works," Premier Manning declared.

Recent trouble in Palestine was attributed directly to the breaking of faith to the Jewish peoples, persecuted in unprecedented manner in the Fascist countries during the past 10 to 15 years.

Following is the resolution that will be cabled Prime Minister Attlee:

"The citizens of Edmonton, Alberta, at a meeting assembled on Oct. 11, 1945, urge that the gates of Palestine be opened for unrestricted settlement by Jews, to the end that they may establish a free and democratic commonwealth in keeping with the historic Balfour Declaration and the solemn pledges made to the Jewish people."

Here is the resolution that will be telegraphed to Prime Minister King at Ottawa:

"We the citizens of Edmonton, assembled at the Masonic Temple on Oct. 11, 1945, regard with great concern the plight of surviving Jewish refugees on the continent of Europe. Tens of thousands of Jews who escaped the Nazi massacres still find themselves herded in concentration camps. They are homeless and stateless and see no hope for their future in those lands where they have undergone horrors of persecution unparalleled even in the dark, middle ages. The great majority of the survivors seek above all the opportunity to rebuild their lives among their own people in Palestine.

"Therefore this assembly urges that the gates of Palestine be opened for unrestricted settlement by Jews so that ultimately they may establish there a free and democratic commonwealth in keeping with the historic Balfour Declaration of 1917 which was endorsed by 52 nations, including our own Dominion of Canada.

"Action and not mere sympathy is now essential.

"For the Jewish people of the continent of Europe there can be no freedom from fear and want and no recompense for the toll of four and one half millions of lives sacrificed unless they be given the security which comes only through the immediate opening of the gates of Palestine to Jewish immigration and through the reconstruction of Palestine as a Jewish commonwealth".

Ald. E. C. Gariepy, KC moved both resolutions.

Election Group Urges Reforms For Candidates

Removal of the property-owning qualification at present necessary for candidates for civic office is one of several measures advocated by a new civic election group which has chosen the name Democratic Alliance. About 50 persons were present at its first meeting held Wednesday in the Queen's hotel.

Second meeting of the Alliance will be held Friday in the Masonic Temple at 8 p.m., when nominations for a slate of candidates to contest the Nov. 7 civic election will be conducted, according to spokesmen for the organization. Nominations will be received from the floor and will be accepted only with the written consent of the qualified nominee, it was stated.

COMMITTEE NAMED

A committee of 15 members to take charge of the election campaign was nominated Wednesday for approval at tonight's meeting. Nominees are Mrs. R. Rowan, Miss B. Ferneyhough, A. J. Boutillier, J. Lakeman, Ben Hager, Alex Herd, J. Harper Prowse, MLA, J. Lenglet, R. MacKay, W. Sykes, T. Truscott, J. Cherrington and W. T. Williams.

Other points in the proposed program of the alliance include employment, industrial expansion, public subsidy of housing, recreational and cultural activities, expanded hospital facilities, improved conditions for hospital employees, lower hospital rates, slum clearance.

Street improvement program, cancellation of agreement with private transportation companies, expansion of civic utilities, abrogation of the agreement with the Calgary power company and full payment in cash for services of the Edmonton power plant. Cancellation of all outstanding relief debts to the city and hospital board. Revision of the tax system as it at present affects home owners.

Andrew Soldier

127 pounds. A week ago, despite an appendicitis operation only the week before that, he weighed 149 pounds.

LOOKS FIT

About five feet nine inches tall and built broad across the shoulders, the farmer-turned-soldier looked fit in his new Canadian army uniform when he reached the city.

But his hearing is still bad, his hands shake when he lights a cigarette or when he moves them, and his eyes fail to join his lips in his ready smiles and quick laughs.

Pte. Hawliuk was captured Christmas night, "after we fought all day, without stopping to eat," he said. It was during that afternoon while he was standing on a cement road, with a tall cliff one side of him and a barbed wire fence on the other, that the bombs were dropped near him.

"Seventeen Jap planes came over," he said. "I never had a chance to get over anywhere and they dropped three bombs, one fell about eight feet away, another 10 and the third about 16 feet.

"They were small bombs," he said, thinking back of his miraculous escape, "but they made holes about three feet across and a foot deep in the solid cement road.

"Two officers were standing about 40 feet away against the cliff. I wasn't hurt and they were not. They yelled over asking me whether I was all right." Hawliuk said he could not hear them, because the concussion deafened him but he believed that was what they said, and he told them he wasn't deaf.

WORKED 18-HOUR DAY

While working in an iron ore smelter near Yokohama, where he remained for six months, he used an 18-pound sledge hammer to break up the ore into small pieces, sometimes working 18 hours a day and never less than 12.

"We got up at 4.30 a.m.," he related, "and we had breakfast at five and had to start work by 5.45. We worked until noon, when we had lunch. Sometimes they gave us an hour, other times half an hour and sometimes just 15 minutes.

"Then we worked until six, seven, or even after 11 o'clock." They were not allowed to eat their third meal until after finishing work. Hours of work varied because they were given specific amounts to do each day, and the jobs had to be completed. They were never allowed to quit before 6 p.m.

FORCED TO WORK

"You had to do it," was the only way the Albertan could explain how the prisoners were able to continue work. "If you stopped they would beat you across the head with sticks, and if you fell they would kick you."

He was never beaten for this, "although, lots of times I was just able to keep moving."

Though never beaten with a stick or kicked, he was slapped a number of times, the first only a few days after his capture.

"We were issued blankets by the Japs, and some had holes in them", he said. "A few days later they inspected our hut, and noticed the holes in the blankets, and blamed us for making them. Everybody had to line up and show their blankets outside and those who owned the torn ones were slapped across both cheeks a number of times by guards".

SEVEN DAY WEEK

The prisoners worked seven days a week, "but about once a month we were given a half day to rest.

"About half the stuff was taken out of Red Cross parcels that reached us", he said.

While at the iron smelter plant he received "about a cupful of rice" three times daily, "tea made from leaves like those on our Saskatoon berry trees and once a month a small piece of meat in a stew. About four times a month we would get a small fish".

There were no stoves in the prisoners' huts. When it snowed they had to shovel the snow all day, and then to get warm at night each man had four blankets, which he put on top of his clothing.

Pte. Hawliuk who in addition to being a farmer is a shoe repairman, thinks he may start a small shoe repair shop and leave his farm. He figures he has about $3,000 coming in back pay and gratuities.

"Some of the Jap guards were not too bad", he said. "They would sit down and let you stop work and give you a cigarette, but others were awful".

His mother resides at Andrew as does one brother, and two others are serving overseas with the Canadian army. He is expected to leave Edmonton for Andrew on Friday.

Vote For Strike

second general strike within a period of three months.

The first general strike resulted from what was stated by workers to be an unreasonable increase in the work of employees on the loading floor of the Canada Packers' plant at Toronto.

Last night's affirmative vote was understood to be the outcome of acting upon recommendation of union decisions reached at the end of September in Winnipeg, where UPWA delegates from all over Canada met in a national conference.

Balloting showed 381 for, 20 against, and 12 spoiled ballots, and announcement of the result was made at 9:40 p.m., to a joint meeting of members of the CIO and AFL unions held in the Alberta Avenue community hall, at which John Lenglet, Edmonton organizer for the CIO, was chosen chairman.

Other speakers were Oscar Wallenberg (Canada Packers), Jack Ferguson (Burns), James Cessford (Swift's), and William Ure, CCL organizer for Alberta.

ASKS SUPPORT

Reason for choosing the Burns company to initiate the strike vote, said Mr. Lenglet, "was because we have had a lot of trouble with them in the past, and also because their industries are concentrated in the west." He added that he was expecting members of the other unions to stand fast in their determination to achieve their "just rights," and to support the Burns' workers if the total vote in that company's plants called for a strike.

"I know that the packing houses of today are ready to get rid of all their women workers, and to take advantage of an expected drop in employment with the order of longer work at less money," charged Mr. Lenglet.

The union organizer referred to the discussion in the House of Commons at Ottawa in which Maj. E. D. Fulton, (PC-Kamloops), suggested the government lift the embargo on cattle shipments to the United States with a view to having Canadian meat processed in that country should a strike develop.

"It must not be forgotten that the meat industry is well organized in the United States, and I am doubtful that they would work in opposition to their Canadian counterparts", Mr. Lenglet speculated.

UNIONS TOGETHER

Speaking for Local 78 AFL (Swift Canadian Company), James Cessford declared he was delighted to see that at long last the two unions had come together to discuss a threat common to both.

He warned that there was little if any "give" as far as the companies were concerned, and that any concessions to the packing house worker would have to be acquired "the hard way". He added moreover that unions were beginning to see the error of separatism. Circumstances would eventually require them to unite for action even if they retained their separate identities.

He congratulated the Burns' workers on their action adding that the workers in the whole of the meat packing industry should be prepared to support them on a national scale.

Oscar Wallenberg reported on the September conference of meat packers, which he said had shown a definite trend toward unanimity of purpose.

MINERS' STRIKE

Representing the Canadian Congress of Labor for Alberta, William Ure spoke briefly of the miners' strike stating it was his opinion they would soon return to work, following the order by their union heads and the changed situation in meat rations. After addressing the audience on various aspects of the CCL he remarked, "At long last we have all realized that to remain split we will all lose in the end. Solidarity of the working classes is needed," he concluded.

"It is good business for the companies when they see you on opposite sides of the fence," remarked John Hampton, a former member of the AFL and now engaged in agriculture. "A hungry dog is more dependent and manageable than a well-fed one," he continued, "and a lot of us are in the hungry class."

He urged the various trade unions represented at the meeting to "keep going from where you are tonight and stick out for your just dues. If you don't, the meat packing companies will soon return to their former master-servant domination of you."

With prospect of the strike vote extending throughout the Dominion in all the major plants, there would undoubtedly be some form of government intervention, it was said.

JURISDICTION PROBLEM

At the present time jurisdiction over packing houses rested with provincial governments, and in a statement made earlier Mr. Lenglet expressed the view that provincial authorities were incapable of handling a national situation.

With this in mind and with a view to following up with union representation a letter mailed earlier to Premier Ernest Manning requesting the province to waive jurisdiction during the dispute, a delegation of six was appointed. Representing Canada Packers were Mr. Wallenberg and William Fletcher; Burns and Company, J. Henderson and B. Martiniuk; Swift Canadian Company, J. McFadzen and Mr. Cessford.

SPORTS BULLETIN

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

CALGARY, so it appears, has become interested in the junior hockey situation once again and Pete Egan, former AHA president, has been named head of a new four-club circuit which includes Drumheller and Canmore along with two Calgary entries.

Harold Brandreth, consistent booster for the junior game in his home city and in the province generally, and Jap Williams of the Buffalo Athletic Club, together with C. C. Scott of Canmore and E. Gagstetter of Drumheller, are the four team representatives.

It is hoped to develop a strong contender for Alberta junior honors and the present plan is to have an all-star team represent the league in the playdowns. Incidentally, unless war-time regulations are continued, all-star aggregations will be out next season, but Edmonton at least, would welcome stouter opposition from the south. Provincial playoffs for some years now have been much too one-sided for the good of the junior game in Alberta.

And don't overlook the fact a junior game is billed for the Arena here on Saturday night, with Canadians opposing a team picked from the other three entries in the Edmonton junior loop—Edmonton, Maple Leaf and South Side Athletic Clubs. And, by the way, it is reported Don Slater, Canadian left winger injured in last Saturday's game, may play tomorrow night.

ARE MONARCHS THE TEAM?

WINNIPEG Monarchs, Manitoba junior champions last season and who were beaten by Moose Jaw in the western final are claimed to be a contender for the Memorial Cup this year. Ten of their 1944-45 team are available with defence ace Don McRae included in the list.

Walter Monson will coach the team and in addition to the ten holdovers, another possibility is Harry Taylor, former St. James Canadian, who was kept out of hockey last year due to transfer trouble. Taylor rates high in Manitoba junior circles. Harry Neil, coach of the Rangers, also is said to have a well-balanced club in sight.

Manitoba junior set-up will not be definitely known until the annual meeting, which is on Oct. 26. In addition to Monarchs and Rangers, Esquires, with Art Somers as coach, are in the field and so is Canadian Ukrainian AC, with St. Boniface Athletics a possible starter. Brandon and Portage la Prairie are expected back this year too.

QUICK CURE FOR GOLF

AND as for allergies—golf stands at the top of Tom Gallery's list. The major-domo of Dan Topping's football team just won't go for the game at all, at all.

"I just can't afford it", Tom explained with a grin. "When I was in California I invested $3,500 in a membership at Lakeside. I paid for lessons and equipment.

"On the seventh hole of my very first round I drove 36 consecutive balls into the water hazard—and then threw my clubs right after them.

"But before I could resign, a cloudburst washed out the course and I was assessed $750 as my share of repairs. Those seven holes cost me at least $5,000. No, I never play golf. I just can't afford it".

Junior Hockey Arena Saturday

Canadian Athletic Club juniors versus an all-star team chosen from the Edmonton, Maple Leaf and South Side Athletic Clubs, will be Saturday night's hockey attraction at the Arena, the game to commence at 9 o'clock.

The all-star aggregation will be named following a workout scheduled for the Arena tonight, while the Canadians will have their complete roster to draw from.

Westglen Trims Scona Bantams In School Grid

Showing a lot of drive, Westglen chalked up a 14-0 victory over Scona in a City High School Six-man Bantam Football League game yesterday afternoon at Westglen's grounds.

All of Westglen's scoring punch came in the first and third quarters with Johnny Klymak, Doug McClocklin, Doug Alloway, Charlie Chinneck and Mickey Rogers showing the way. The two outstanding players for Scona were Fred Movie and Don Wingfield.

Shortly after the start of the game Johnny Klymak booted one to the deadline for the first point of the game. Right after this Westglen gained possession of the ball on Scona's 20-yard line, and on an extended end run moved to the 10-yard line, where, on the first play, McClocklin carried it over for the first touchdown of the fixture on a run around the right end. A pass from Klymak to Alloway was good for the convert to make the score 7-0 for Westglen at the end of the first quarter.

With the second stanza going scoreless, the winners increased their margin to 9-0 on a safety touch about half-way through the third frame. Then near the end of the quarter Charlie Chinneck carried the ball around the right end from Scona's 20-yard line for the final touchdown of the game to complete the scoring. The convert failed.

Scona came to life and started to show some fight in the last quarter, but were held at bay by the winning Westglen crew.

Lineups:

Scona—Movie, Adamson, Wingfield, Pfrimies, Dawe, J. MacDonald, B. MacDonald, McLaughlin, Roberts, Pritchard, Barker, Kilburn.

Westglen: Ursuliak, McClocklin, McBride, Chinneck, Haliburton, Alloway, Klymak, Henry, Forest, Rogers.

Officials: Marvin Dyer and George Greenwood.

Grimm "Saddest" Man In Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(AP)—The saddet man in town Thursday was manager Charlie Grimm of Chicago Cubs who was completely crushed by Detroit Tigers' world series triumph.

When a guy like Jolly Cholly, one of baseball's most beloved personalities, forgets to go to the dressing room to congratulate a winning rival, you know he's sick 'way down.

Grimm wasn't in the gang of back-slappers that rushed into the Tigers' lair after their clinching 9-3 victory Wednesday. Charley was covering his sorrow with a grin in his own club-house, trying to cheer up his battered Bruins.

It was bitter gall for this affable manager, who once before had lost to those same Tigers in the 1935 series and whose 1932 Cubs were belted out of the lot by New York Yankees. He wanted to win this one more than he wanted anything in his life. It would have been a brilliant climax to a thorny managerial career.

Former Sport Star 50 Years a Printer

By A. E. NIGHTINGALE

Readers of The Edmonton Bulletin noted recently in the news columns an item telling how the union printers of this city had been delighted to honor one of their oldest and most highly respected members, and had presented W. J. (Bill) Power with a gold 50-year membership button.

This presentation commemorated the fact that "Bill" had been an active member of the International Typographical Union for 50 or more years—and, incidentally, a member of The Edmonton Bulletin mechanical staff since 1906, and a charter member of Edmonton Typographical Union No. 604.

W. J. "BILL" POWER

This pleasing event was, of course, properly reported in the news columns. But, reading it, this department—always on the lookout for items of sporting interest to its readers — remembered that Bill Power, besides being an expert manipulator of that intricate and necessary machine in a modern newspaper plant, the linotype, was in his early days a star in his own right in many branches of sports and the athletic field.

Here, then, are a few facts for the record concerning this well-known and popular citizen. Born in Larne, Country Antrim, Ireland, Billy Power went to Ottawa with his parents in 1885, the year of the rebellion — probably his father, being a good Irishman, wanted to find out whether that was a private fight or whether anybody could get into it!

Still of school age, Bill soon associated himself with most branches of sport. Lacrosse, rugby football, hockey, boxing and the cinder track were all participated in with considerable success, and he "made" some of the biggest teams of half a century ago.

Lacrosse was one of his early loves, and a gleam will come into his eye as he speaks of those "good old days" in this national pastime. He first played with the Ottawa Midgets and was a member in turn of midget, juvenile, junior and senior teams in the capital city.

The year 1890 found him with the New Edinburgh Thistles, and he was later with Oshkosh for a season. He then went to Ottawa Metropolitans in the International League. From the Metropolitans he graduated to the Ottawa City Seniors, and finally found himself with that "greatest of all lacrosse teams", the Ottawa Capitals, who became world champions. Bill would be found playing either inside home, centre or on defence.

BOXLA LIKE BOXING

James J. Corbett once remarked that "lacrosse is like boxing, because it seems to call at times for the extremity of individual endurance," and in some personal reminiscences the late beloved Dean E. A. Howes of Alberta University, in a reference to the Capitols of that time, says: "I consider that old Capitol team as the best aggregation of athletes it has ever been my good fortune to know. Big men physically, there was not a weak link in the chain that stretched from goal to inside home; fleet of foot, and beautifully accurate in passing, their game was an inspiration to all who loved athletic prowess."

A further reference by Dean Howes is also of interest. ". . . Then, when school was out", he writes, "I would mount my bicycle and pedal away to the city (Ottawa), to seek a chance to play as scrub in the practices of the Capitals. I used to stand quite in awe of those demi-gods of the athletic world, and in these latter days when I hobnob with Billy Power, one of my nearest friends, and when during a visit to the capital I call to see Hugh Carson and to talk with him about Shorthorn cattle, I cannot avoid a wave of diffidence now and then, that would make them both smile if they suspected its existence".

Besides Hugh Carson, one of the all-time greats, other stars on the team with Power, were Jimmy Devine, George Carson, Jimmy Murphy, Harry Carleton, Tom Crown and Bill's brother, Johnny Power, who, with Eddie Murphy, was considered one of the most dangerous attacking pairs in the game.

MANY RECOLLECTIONS

Mr. Power has many interesting recollections of the game in those far-off days. He recalls that in one barnstorming tour, he met in Peterborough, Ont., a player who later became attorney-general for Alberta. This was Charlie Cross who, while attending college as a law student, was playing with Toronto City in the Big League. In 1893, citizens of Ottawa presented all members of the Capitals with gold watches.

In rugby, Bill played flying wing in a number of Ottawa teams, finishing up with the Rough Riders for several years, in one of which the team won the Dominion championship. Bill wears a watch charm as a memento of this. He played hockey in those days too, and was with the Ottawa City team when it won the championship. And if this wasn't enough, he appeared many times on the cinder track, wearing the colors of the Ottawa Capitals, and was a good enough sprinter to win medals for the ¼-mile and 220 yards distances.

ALSO TRIED BOXING

And, finally, when he had any time to spare, this tough old-timer dabbled in boxing, and got the nod many times in the ring of the Ottawa Amateur Athletic Association.

A floating cartilege in the knee finally brought Bill's athletic career to an end. There are many old-timers in this Western Canada of ours who can look back on great athletic records, but we will say with every confidence that Bill Power takes his place high up in the list of old-time greats still in our midst.

18 Marks Equalled In Series

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP)—The world series between Detroit and Chicago that ended Wednesday set 21 records and tied 18.

A total of 333,457 persons paid their way into the seven games compared to previous attendance high of 328,051 who watched the New York Yankee-St. Louis Cardinal series in 1926.

Total gate receipts, including $100,000 for broadcasting rights, reached $1,592,454, wiping out the previous high of $1,322,328 set in the 1940 series between Detroit and Cincinnati.

Probably the greatest achievement was turned in by pitcher Claude Passeau of the Cubs who blanked the Tigers with one hit Oct. 5, facing only 28 men. Teammate Stan Hack was the only player who entered the record book both as a batter and fielder. In addition to tying a mark by making four hits in a game, he established a record for third basemen by making 12 putouts.

Hal Newhouser of the Tigers, in striking out 22, broke the figure of 20 held by three other hurlers in a seven-game set. Bill Dineen of the 1903 Boston Red Sox whiffled 28, but did it in an eight-game series.

Based on a seven-game series the records set include:

INDIVIDUAL

Most putouts, third basemen, one series—12, Stan Hack, Chicago.

Most chances accepted, outfielder, one series—26, Andy Pafko, Chicago.

Fewest batters facing pitcher, one game—28, Passeau, Chicago (Oct. 5).

Return Karakas Eases Situation For Black Hawks

REGINA, Oct. 12—(CP)—Three new faces will be seen when Chicago Black Hawks, National Hockey League club now in training here, and Doc Romnes' Kansas City Americans renew their exhibition hockey series Friday at Queen City Gardens.

Mike Karakas, veteran Hawk gaolie, will make his debute in the nets, while George Gee of Toronto and Wingy Johnson will show on the forward lines. Romnes doesn't think his Amerks will be far off, though they lost the opener of the three-game series 5-2 to the Hawks Thanksgiving Day.

The games are creating rivalry among the players, and body checks are due to start flying any night now that the Athletes are rounding into condition. The third game of the series will be played at Moose Jaw, Sask., Saturday.

10,000 Turn Out To Welcome Tigers

DETROIT, Oct. 12—(AP)—Detroit Tigers, dog tired but hilarious after dragging down baseball's richest prize by defeating Chicago Cubs in the world series, arrived home Thursday to find a milling mob of fully 10,000 fans—band and all—staging an impromptu victory celebration in and around the station here.

Manager Steve O'Neill, who hasn't had a team in a world series since he caught for Cleveland Indians championship outfit of 1920, couldn't believe his eyes.

Wild cheers arose from the crowd as their heroes came in view—O'Neill, Newhouser, Greenberg, Richards, York, Trout.

Les Mueller, Tiger pitcher with a baby son born the day before the world series opened, said, "Don't ask me where that money's going. The kid had a piggy bank waiting for him when he came."

Patrick Plans New System Of Alternating Goalkeepers

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12—(CP)—New York Rangers' biggest hockey worry during the last couple of seasons—the net-minding chore—has a double-barreled solution this year with the return of Sugar Jim Henry and Charlie Rayner, two star goaltenders.

However, the abundance of puck-stopping talent has also uncovered a problem, and manager Lester Patrick said last night he has been considering the revolutionary idea of alternating goalies by periods.

"We might even go further," he said, "by changing netminders in mid-period if the goalie on the ice happens to be playing a little shakily or is not feeling very well."

The idea, something new to pro hockey, is still only on paper, and Lester doesn't know as yet whether the Rangers will adopt the policy.

Rangers launched their training sessions Thursday and coach Frank Boucher has a total of 31 players in camp, including more than a dozen former stars.

Patrick is still thinking of moving centre Neil Colville back of the blueline, and with a plentiful supply of good centre players working out this season, he figures it's a good year to experiment.

If Lynn Patrick manages to get a discharge from the U.S. Army in time to play hockey, Lester said he might try to make a defenceman out of him as well, which would give the New Yorkers a pair of top rushing rearguards and fit in well with their wide open style of play.

Three-Run Homer Puts Seals Ahead

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12—(AP)—Neil Sheridan hit a three-man homer in the ninth inning tonight to give the San Francisco Seals a 7-4 win over the Seattle Rainiers in the fifth game of the Pacific Coast League Governor's Cup finals. The Seals had tied the game 5-all in the eighth.

The victory gave the Seals a 3-2 game edge. The clubs play tonight, and Sunday afternoon if necessary in the best four-out-of-seven game series.

Colville Junior Coach

Art Jackson Again Prexy Maple Leaf Athletic Club

President of the organization for the past year, Art Jackson was re-named to the same post at the annual meeting of the Maple Leaf Athletic Club held on Thursday night.

Earl Samis, former member of the executive is the new vice-president and Frank Arnold was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

John Colville, who handled the team last season will again coach the Maple Leaf in the City Junior Hockey League, which also includes Canadian EAC and South Side sextets.

For the first time, two juvenile teams will carry Leaf colors in that division of city hockey and Bob Haxby and Ted Allard were named coaches at last night's meeting.

There will be two Maple Leaf midget teams again this year and Buster Brown will be in charge of both, pending the formal naming of coaches.

The club also plans to run four bantam hockey teams as in former seasons and it is hoped that some ex-Leaf juniors returning out of the services will assist in coaching duties. Army and Navy Store, Nutop Cones and W. W. Arcade were announced as sponsors for three of the bantam teams.

Art Jackson and Harvey Irwin will represent the club at the annual AHA meeting which will be held in Calgary on Nov. 10.

Sweet Caps Salute Those Who Wear This Badge —

Today the only thing that distinguishes them is a crowned silver shield bearing a trefoil of red maple leaves. An unobtrusive button symbolic of so much in the life of the wearer. Canadians at home welcome them back with pride.

Ask those who wear it, they'll tell you that during years in uniform the demand was for the unfailing solace of Sweet Caps — and now, back in "civvies" it still rates first in smoking pleasures.

Today's Sport Parade

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(BUP)—Paul Rapier Richards, the tired Tiger catcher whose first inning double wrapped up the 1945 world series, limped back to Texas Thursday to "just sit and watch those pecans grow."

Richards was an outstanding member of the "eight old men" from Detroit who finished the business of skinning the Chicago Cubs Wednesday. And take it from Paul, he, at least, just made it.

"If there had been one more game—or maybe even one more inning—I don't think I'd have made it," Paul said as he slumped down in front of his locker in the riotous Tiger dressing room.

Paul took no part in the wild celebration and even ignored Hank Greenberg who, instead of thinking about the world championship just won, was griping about know-nothing scorers who marked an error against him in the 12-inning loss two days before.

Although he was the man who had done the most to win the championship for the Tigers in this final game, Paul quietly threaded his way to the showers, acknowledging congratulations in his pleasant and almost surprised way. Richards wanted to go home, and that was the uppermost thought just under his slick black hair.

HIS GREATEST SEASON

IT was the end of his greatest season—and possibly of his playing career. Getting to this point was more than the worrisome guy ever had dreamed of and it was one of those once-in-a-million happenings.

Richards was just a minor league manager three years ago after knocking around with Brooklyn, the Giants and the Athletics. He had been managing Atlanta four years, and doing a bangup job, when the Tigers hired him in 1943 as a coach. Then came the break which, long after Richards had resigned himself, was to make him one of the brightest stars in the game.

Dixie Parsons was slated to do the Tiger catching in 1943 and when he came up with a lame arm, Paul suddenly found himself behind the mask with a mitt on his hand. He's been there ever since, and his unorthodox stance of projecting one leg because of an old injury, and it paid off in a pennant for the Tigers.

STEADIED TIGER PITCHERS

IT was Richards who steadied the Bengal pitchers, who tamed young Hal Newhouser, once a Tiger terror, and who always was right there in the clutch. A spot, for instance, as in the first inning Wednesday when, with three men on base, Richards came through with the double that cleared the bases and broke the Cubs' collective backs. After that one, Chicago's hopes were wrecked and the Cubs knew it.

"I never thought Paul would be such an important factor," happy Steve O'Neill, the Tiger manager, said after the game.

But if O'Neill was surprised, his astonishment was no greater than that of the 37-year-old catcher from Waxahachie, Tex. For Richards, his finger split by a foul tip in the eighth, knew he was playing on borrowed time.

It is highly improbable that Richards will be back of the bat next year. Paul knew that as he slumped on the bench after that final game and he didn't want to talk about it. But his cut of the biggest world series pie in history, and the knowledge that he finally forged to the top, should make Paul's dreams very pleasant as he snoozes under those pecan trees.

Was "Beaten Up"

Vancouver Boxla Official Barred by Canadian Body

VANCOUVER, Oct. 12—(CP)—Jimmy Gunn of Vancouver, one of the officials in Wednesday night's final game of the Canadian lacrosse championships between St. Catharines Athletics and Vancouver Burrards, Thursday was barred from "any further employment by the CLA in any capacity, for using bad language."

The CLA decision was handed down at a special meeting late Saturday following a complaint by Gunn that he was "beaten up" after Wednesday night's game by Bill Whittaker, veteran goalkeeper for St. Catharines. Burrards defeated St. Catharines 14-5 to win the championship in three straight games. They took the first 12-6 and the second 18-7.

The CLA also suspended Whittaker "until such time as he appears before an executive meeting of the CLA."

Gunn said Whittaker, in company with several other St. Catharines players, forced his way into the referees dressing room after the game and, after a brief exchange of words, struck him with his fists.

A fight ensued, Gunn added, and the other referee, Bill Wilkes of New Westminster, B.C., and several other inter-city lacrosse league officials, were prevented from interfering by the other St. Catharines players.

Whittaker had been summoned to attend the special meeting, but did not appear.

Gunn, a lacrosse referee here for the past several years, requested that the press be allowed to hear argument at the special meeting, but CLA officials voted to hold the meeting in camera.

Catcher Red Walters and left fielder Steve Barath of Colonels were the only other regulars above the .300 mark in a series that has been dominated by the high grade of Louisville pitching.

Little Series To Resume Tonight

NEWARK, Oct. 12—(AP)—Shortstop Dick Shofner of Louisville Colonels was firmly entrenched as the hitting star of the little world series, carrying a .583 batting average back to Kentucky where the American Association play-off champs and Newark Bears will tangle in the fourth game tonight.

Stars Are Returning

1946 Edition of Tigers Should Be Much Stronger

By GAYLE TALBOT

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(AP)—The champion Detroit Tigers are anything but a great ball club, and they might be, as some claim, the weakest outfit ever to win a world series, but they were the best team in baseball this particular year and a dead-game gang when the going was toughest.

They were slow afoot and their fielding could be pretty atrocious at times and they couldn't hit a lick against real good pitching. But they possessed a superb pitching staff headed by Hal Newhouser and they had a stubborn determination to win over a young, speedy, alert Chicago Cubs team.

Assuming that all, or even most, of the Detroit stars now in the service are on hand when the team gathers at Lakeland, Florida, in mid-February—O'Neill will be in position to put together almost a complete new club around his pitching corps.

Returning to the outfield will be Pat Mullins, Dick Wakefield and Barney McCosky, three proved performers, and they say that in Walter (Hoot) Evers, who played with Wakefield at Beaumont Tex. O'Neill has a star who will push one of the above three right out of the line-up.

Hank Greenberg is supposed to be ticketed for a return to his old job at first base, as he no longer can roam the outer reaches. Rudy York probably will be sold to some club needing a first sacker.

Veteran centrefielder Roger Cramer, who led all Tiger batsmen in the series, said before the series he was well fixed financially and was playing his last year of ball. Roy Cullenbine, the Tiger's present right fielder, doubtless will remain in a utility role, as he also can play some infield position.

With the possible exception of Eddie Mayo at second base, the champions' infield will be torn apart. Pinky Higgins, back from the navy, will take over his old job at third, with scrapping little Jimmy Outlaw sticking around as a utility man.

Skeeter Webb covered himself with glory in the series, but his chances of remaining at shortstop virtually are nil.

TORONTO, Oct. 12—(CP)—A jockey who rides in a race and watches the same event from a vantage point outside the racing strip sounds like a split personality with a superman slant, but it can be done. Hank (Squeaky) Harris proved it can.

Dufferin Park in Torono, which is to Ontario racing what Brooklyn is to baseball, provided the setting for this tallest of turf tales. Squeaky had the mount on Baltimore Lass in the last race. At the first turn the mare ran wide, Harris fell off, rolled in the dirt and landed on his feet at the paddock gate.

For undisclosed reasons (betting by jockeys is closely regulated), Harris kept going. He ran up the stairs to the jockey's room in plenty of time to watch the field swing around the top turn into the homestretch for the finish of the 1 1-16th-miles event.

All is not well on the the harness racing front in Ontario. The trainer of a prominent London, Ont., harness horse stable tells Harry (London Free Press) Eisen that most meets in Ontario this season were "fly-by-night affairs" with purses so small winners barely paid expenses.

The trainer also advocated mutuel wagering to replace betting through bookmakers. "The way the handbooks operate things at the harness horse meets, the bettors might just as well toss their dollars down the drain pipe. The odds they give the poor sucker make a loan shark look like a philanthropist."

Around the circuit: Joe Farrell, veteran publicity man for Chicago Black Hawks, was pretty incensed when coach Johnny Gottselig told him he needed a pass to gain admittance to workouts at the team's National Hockey League's training camp. When last heard from, Farrell was preparing wires to Chicago papers advising no releases would be sent because he couldn't get into the rink.

And speaking of hockey press agents coincides with appointment of Ed Fitkin for that job with Toronto Maple Leafs. Fitkin, former sports writer with the Toronto Star and Toronto Globe and Mail, will assist Frank Selke, who was acting manager in the absence of Maj. Conny Smythe.

New Ski Village Awaits Snowfall

The Edmonton Ski Village at White Mud Creek now is awaiting the first snowfall of the season to open the new winter sports centre for the first time.

The initial ski trail, 90 feet wide and 440 yards long, has been cleared and will be in use as soon as sufficient snow falls to make it suitable for skiing. Funnels on both sides of the main hill have been cut at different heights for the use of less experienced skiiers and at present the operators have what is to be know as a nursery slope, under construction.

The name of the main hill, which has an approximate 500-foot slant, will be "Vor Laga", Swiss for "forward lean".

It is expected that the Village will be opened early in November and it is hoped to have Art Coles, North American downhill champion here for the official opening.

To encourage more skiing, free instruction will be given each Saturday and Sunday mornings and afternoons.

Star Pucksters To Attend Leaf Training Camp

TORONTO, Oct. 12—(CP)—A power-packed group of candidates for the 1945-46 edition of the Toronto Maple Leafs left Thursday for Owen Sound, Ont., to embark on their annual pre-season training schedule for the National Hockey League campaign in which they hope to win the NHL title and their second successive Stanley Cup.

The 40 players on the club roster received a sendoff Wednesday night at a victory dinner at which Maj. Conn Smythe, managing director of Maple Leaf Gardens urged expansion of the NHL, saying that if it did not develop beyond its present six-team setup it would have to "admit there is something wrong with its leadership."

Among the former servicemen leaving for Owen Sound were such stalwarts as defencemen Ernie Dickens, Bob Goldham and Bingo Kampman and forwards Billy Taylor, Shep Mayer, Gaye Stewart and Jackie Hamilton. Syl Apps is expected to receive his Canadian Army discharge soon and join the team before the training season ends.

Players from last year's team seeking places again this year are: Goaltender Frank McCool; defencemen Walter (Babe) Pratt, Wally Stanowski, Elwin Morris, Pete Backor and Ross Johnstone; forwards Gus Bodnar, Sweeney Schriner, Lorne Carr, Ted (Teeter) Kennedy, Bob Davidson, Mel Hill, Nick and Don Metz. Carr has not yet arrived from his home at Calgary but is expected to reach the training camp by the first of next week.

Some of the more promising newcomers are Gordie Bell, goaltending sensation from Portage La Prairie who made his pro debut with Buffalo in the American Hockey League; Doug Baldwin from the Quebec Aces, a standout Winnipeg product; Joe Irvine, an outstanding player with the Winnipeg Rangers two seasons ago; Tommy Anderson, former defenceman with the New York Americans just out of the army.

Rumor Campaign To Oust "Happy" As Commissioner

VERSAILLES, Ky., Oct. 12—(AP)—Senator A. B. (Happy) Chandler Thursday accused hidden enemies of attempting to discredit him as baseball commissioner in an organized smear campaign.

His hometown Versailles newspaper, the Woodford Sun, which he owns, announced in a headline: "'Happy' and owners smoke pipe of peace after false report of rift and attempt to buy contract."

Chandler, turning on his famous grin, said he had been "worked over" in smear campaigns many times before during his political career and had survived them all. "This one didn't work, either," he said.

Asked whether, in his opinion, he was being attacked this time by political or baseball interests, he declared:

"It is not on the baseball side."

He referred to published reports that he and baseball club owners were at odds and that the owners wanted to buy off his seven-year commissioner's contract.

McGeer Seeks Longer Period To Study Bills

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—(CP)—The Senate, plunging anew into the subject of its powers and activities, yesterday debated a proposal that its committees start consideration of bills when they are introduced in the House of Commons instead of waiting until passed there, they are forwarded to the upper house.

The suggestion came from Senator G. G. McGeer (L-British Columbia) and before debate was adjourned it saw him clash with his fellow townsman and fellow Liberal from Vancouver, Senator John Farris.

Senator McGeer moved an amendment to a motion by Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, that the Senate's standing finance committee examine expenditures proposed by estimates placed before Parliament "and by resolutions relating to war and other proposed financial measures of which notice has been given to parliament" before the bills reached the Senate.

The amendment would extend the authorization to include any committee and any resolution or proposed bill.

WANT MORE TIME

Senator McGeer introduced it after Senator John Haig, Progressive Conservative, demanded an end to the brief periods of time given the senate to consider bills.

"The government must get the estimates here sooner or they can sit in the corridors and cool their heels," he said. "This is the end."

His reference was to an interim supply bill for $29,768,000 which the senate later gave final reading to permit Royal Assent late last night. The bill was received in the senate Wednesday.

Senator McGeer said his proposal would mean the Senate would start consideration of a bill as soon as the Commons did, thus would have no complaint that it had not enough time to consider.

Senator Thomas Vien (L, Quebec) said the amendment was "extremely sweeping" and "most unwise."

Senator Farris said he objected on the "principle that the Senate should discuss such bills on the floor of the Senate." The amendment would give the government an alibi which he was not wont to give.

He objected to the "hole in the corner" method of having committees handle such matters in that manner.

Senator McGeer objected but Senator Farris retorted: "I repeat it."

Senator McGeer added: "You would."

Senator Farris, urging closer cooperation between the two houses, suggested an amendment to allow ministers concerned with certain bills to take a Senate seat and introduce them.

The ROAD AHEAD

By Capt. HARPER PROWSE, M.L.A.

WITH municipal and civic elections coming up in the near future—already contestants are being named—it is high time that people everywhere began to consider to whom they are going to entrust the government of their cities, towns and municipalities for the next year, or two years.

The next year or two are going to be critical years in our development. It isn't merely going to be a question of hanging onto the prosperity we have but of preparing and planning for the future. This dictates that we should elect men who combine with these qualities the rarer ones of vision, foresight and faith in the future.

During the war [illegible] we achieved [illegible]. It was a time when people [illegible] still and make no effort to consider the future, its needs and requirement. But now we need men who will get out and sell the opportunities we possess here in Alberta [illegible] other districts in the country and Canada as a whole. Sitting and waiting won't help us to win the peace.

BEST MEN NEEDED

It is important that we should have the best men available in positions of trust. People, every one of us, have a duty as citizens to get out and register our votes for the men we believe are best able to serve us. To do this we should listen to all candidates, learn as much as we can about their backgrounds, what their records of public service are, and what their motives are in running.

In the past civic elections have been characterized by the fact that practically nobody ever bothered to come out to hear the candidates explain their platforms—and we should insist that they do have platforms. We should remember that we have won the right to choose our own leaders only after centuries of struggle and bloodshed.

There is a tendency today for all governments—civic, provincial and Dominion to become bureaucracies—which means that we are more and more being governed by civil servants, instead of by our elected

THE QUESTION

The civic election campaign preliminaries are starting to bubble. Do you think with the war over the oldtime interest in civic politics will return or will the lassitude of wartime elections continue?

THE ANSWERS

I. MACMILLAN, welder: I feel that Edmontonians will take a real interest in this election campaign for the first time since 1939. After all there's not much going on elsewhere in the world to hold your interest these days is there?

* * *

T. BOWEN, salesman: There is certain to be a much [illegible] this year than in the last five or six civic campaigns. I look for a lively fight in the coming campaign.

A recently-returned member of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment: I'm really out of touch with most things locally but I'll venture the prediction that there's a real oldtime lively election campaign waged here this fall. We haven't got winning the war to worry us now. We'll all start to take keen interest in local affairs again, I believe.

OTHERS ELECTED

Other members elected to act on the executive were: H. Wilds, R. Fraser, J. Stevenson and C. Simmons.

The new executive is to request the city recreation commission to supply the federation with trained men to take care of their various sports activities.

The financial report showed the federation's bank balance and assets to be $2,120.69.

G. Shannon, suggested that the federation endorse five candidates for the coming elections. He was immediately ruled out of order by the chairman, who reminded him that the organization by its constitution, can have nothing whatsoever to do or say about politics.

Check Crop Yields For Federal Govt.

Field men are busy checking on crop yields in those districts which have applied for federal government assistance under the provisions of the Prairie Farm Assistance Act, it was learned in Edmonton Friday. Their work must be completed before winter, officials say, and their reports when finished go to Ottawa where a reviewing board decides as to whether or not Alberta is a "crop failure" province by reason of drought.

Reported yields would indicate that there is little doubt that the federal government will be called upon to pay [illegible]

Parent Says Crow "Attacked" Baby

City police Friday were calling all crow catchers, amateur, professional or otherwise, following a complaint by Hugh Cameron, 9410 100A street, that a pet crow, owned by people living in the neighborhood had attacked his child.

Cameron said his wife put the baby out for an airing during the afternoon and later found the crow perched on the edge of the carriage pecking at the infant's face.

"We'd like to have someone catch the crow for us so we could let the pound deal with it," Staff Insp. Alex Riddell at police headquarters said.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Has Right To Run House Without Interference

Fussy Hubby Is a Pest; Man Goes Around Making Beds, Rearranging Furniture, Straightening Pictures and Exasperates Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I are very much in love, but we are always getting on each other's nerves. He is the kind of a man who goes around making beds, rearranging furniture, straightening pictures, emptying ash trays, etc. This exasperates me, even though he is only trying to help. Also, when he wants to talk over things it means that he wants to let me know how things should be done around the house.

It is not a case of leaving him because I couldn't find peace and contentment away from him. It is a question of how much more happiness and less nervous strain we could both find if he would only let me be the housekeeper. Can you help me?

Mrs. M. B.

HARD TO PLEASE

ANSWER: Aren't women hard things to please when it comes to husbands? Here you are tearing your hair because you have a husband who helps with the housework, and loves it, and I have rheumatism in my shoulders from the tears that other woman have shed on them because they had husbands whom wild horses could not drag into the kitchen, and who sulked for days if they had even to wipe a dish or lend a hand with the baby.

But personally, I think that an overly domestic husband is a pest worse than cockroaches in the house. Nothing can be more aggravating than to have a man around who keeps an eye on the garbage can to see if you peel the potatoes too thick, and who runs his fingers under the rugs to see if you swept under them, and who tells you that he can make a perfectly delicious cake with one egg and no butter, and that you are not making the bread as you should.

A woman's house is her castle and she has the right to run it as he pleases, without any interference or back talk from her husband, and she is within her rights if she uses her broom and sweeps him out of her bailiwick. She doesn't butt into the way he manages his business and he should keep hands off of hers.

MARRIED MAN

DEAR DOROTHHY DIX: I am a married man and have been very happy until about two weeks ago when my mother-in-law came to visit us. She came at the time the baby was born and as soon as she got here she started telling us what to do. I took it as long as I could and then I blew my top and told her a thing or two.

She went to the hospital and cried and told my wife about it. My wife begged me to ask her to forgive me. This I did, but when my wife and baby came hom it was the same thing again, so I sent her home. Now my wife cries when I ... go to her mother's.

I was discharged from the service after my nerves were gone and I ... my mother-in-law. What can I do?

WORRIED.

ANSWER—Probably the reason you took offense so easily at your mother-in-law's suggestions is because you are in such a nervous condition and when your health is built up and you have better control of your temper you will feel differently towards her. The thing for you to do is just to forget all about this little episode. Quit worrying over it. Don't go to your monther-in-law's if you do not want to, but don't try to keep your wife from going to see her mother and taking the baby.

Try to remember that your wife has been through just as much an ordeal in having the baby as you went through in the war, and that her nerves are shot to pieces, too. So don't do anything to make her unhappy. It seems to me that both ... and her mother in going to ... with your quarrel while she ... be a good husband.

BOY OF 15

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a ... What shall I do?

... 15 ... as lovemakers. You are too ... with the girls, so just wait and you will find out that your tongue will grow up along with you and that you will have plenty to say in a few years.

Debunker

Just as furs are often sold under deceiving names, so is gold. "Jewelers Gold" may mean most anything from part-gold to alloys of copper and zinc. "Mosaic gold" contains no gold whatever, and it is a mixture of tin and sulphur. "Petit-Or" and "Pinch-Beck Gold" are made by melting zinc in certain proportions with copper and brass, giving a color nearly like gold. As pure gold is too soft for most purposes, it is usually melted up with some other metal to give it hardness.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The following questions seem to trouble a number of mothers.

"My baby has been on canned milk since he was born. He is now 10 months and I would like to change to fresh milk. Should the change be made all at once or gradually? Must the milk be heated? How long should I continue four meals a day? He takes just one nap but he seems eager for food every four hours. When should the strained vegetables be changed to the coarser type?"

You can make up the same formula in fresh as in canned milk. But it is well to boil the fresh milk, at least for the time, for it is easier to digest and the change would not be so drastic. Children with any milk sensitivity might react strongly to an unprocessed milk. Those with no such sensitivity could take either type of milk with no ill-effects. Just because you have never experimented with fresh milk, make the change by only one bottle a day, then two, then three and avoid trouble.

Warm the milk. Children used to warmed milk might find the cold milk distasteful. Mothers having difficulty selling their children on cup feeding might find that some of their reluctance to accept a cup might be because the mother serves cold and not warm milk in it.

You can give the baby three meals a day anytime. It would be a convenient schedule with your baby's present nap habits. Since your baby wants food every four hours, give him half a cup or half a bottle of milk, mid-way between the noon and night meal. He can have a cracker then, too, if wants it.

It is advisable to give some coarser vegetables or fruit along with the sieved variety, just to get the baby used to the feel of foods of this coarser texture. If he has sieved foods for too long (even though they are still usable for him now) he may become too fixed in his devotion to them and later may resist the chopped, mashed foods you want to give him. So try out some mashed fruit or vegetable occasionally, and don't worry if he frowns and tries to spit out out. He'll get used to it.

Our leaflet, "The Three-Meal Schedule," shows when to begin this schedule and the foods for the various meals. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

See Irregularity In Sask. Voting

MELVILL, Sask., Oct. 12—(CP)—Sgt. H. Radcliffe of Regina, a handwriting expert of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, testified yesterday at an inquiry into irregularities alleged to have occurred in Melville riding in the federal general election June 11 that three of twelve ballots in dispute had features in common "which indicate strong possibility that they were written by the one writer."

McCoy Health Service

Many people regard their tonsils as two useless appendages which were placed in the throat to cause discomfort and sickness. It is quite a common attitude even among doctors to regard the tonsils as useless and better out, but this is a wrong attitude as the tonsils are really important structures, and, if you can keep your tonsils healthy, you are indeed fortunate.

The tonsils are in a position to guard the throat and their work is to screen out certain poisons which are drained by the lymphatic stream. Tonsils which function normally keep many poisonous substances from passing along the lymphatic channels deeper into the body.

If the living habits of the patient are such that a systemic poisoning is set up the tonsils immediately begin to work harder to screen out the extra waste. When they increase their size in order to handle the extra work, we say they are enlarged. If the poisoning continues, the tonsils will break down, allowing germs to enter and toxins to accumulate until finally the tonsils become a large pus-filled mass which no longer carries on its protective work.

Diseased tonsils may contribute to rheumatism, heart trouble, ear trouble, and swollen neck glands. Children and adults with broken-down tonsilar tissue frequently suffer from such disorders as cold, bronchitis and sore throats. Children may be held back in school by bad tonsils.

The surgical removal of tonsils is often followed by a short period of improvement due to getting the infected masses out of the throat. However, even though the tonsils are removed, the underlying cause which produced their enlargement still remains and the patient may gradually develop a more serious disorder such as sinus trouble, chronic bronchitis, or ear troubles.

If I did not know of a better method I might advocate the removal of tonsils; however, I have had experience with thousands of cases, and it is my firm belief that every case of enlarged tonsils can be cured by the right diet and fasting treatment.

In addition to the dietetic treatment it is often advisable to use ultra violet light treatments. I believe that one reason we have less tonsil trouble during the summer months is that during these months we secure plenty of the natural ultra-violet rays from sunlight.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Gordon Defends Extending Control

TORONTO, Oct. 12—(CP)—Donald Gordon, prices and trade board chairman, said yesterday in reply to criticism by C. L. Burton of the federal government's proposal to extend wartime legislation that "the elected representatives of the people are being given full opportunity to decide this vital question in accordance with the workings of our democratic system of government".

Burton, president of a large retail company (Robert Simpson Co., Ltd.), charged that "the ruin of reconversion is now being shaped in Ottawa".

Gordon's statement in reply said in part: "The proposed legislation as I understand it is intended to continue emergency powers during the emergency period to deal with the consequences of war.

"I have pointed out in recent statements . . . that a hasty abolition of the price ceiling and wage salary controls or related controls, such as rationing and other distribution restrictions necessary to ensure a fair share of goods which continue in short supply, would lead inevitably to a serious inflation and a bad breakdown in the distribution of such goods".

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Beginners at bridge often ask "How do you know which way to take a finesse when there is the choice of taking it either way?"

One principle I always pass on to them is to play the queen over the jack when all other things are equal; that is, if it does not make any difference which opponent gets the lead, and if the bidding fails to give an indication of the situation. In playing the queen over the jack you will be right at least 50 per cent. of the time; if you try to guess every time, you may be wrong more often than right.

In today's hand several players in a duplicate game complained of hard luck when, after winning the first trick with the jack of spades, they took the club finesse and lost to East's king. The player who won top score on the board led a small heart at trick two, won with the king in dummy and returned a diamond, finessing the ten-spot.

South did not particularly care whether the ten-spot was won or lost. If West won with the queen, regardless of what he returned, declarer could cash one spade, four hearts, three diamonds and the ace of clubs. In this case the ten-spot held, but it gave declarer the same number of tricks.

Air Stewardess Important Factor in Modern Travel

CONVENER.—Mrs. Archie McMullen, who is convening the annual freeze-up dance to be held by the Ceiling and Visibility Unlimited club, at the Masonic Temple, Nov. 2. Assisting Mrs. McMullen are Mrs. R. ... and Mrs. N. McPherson.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 12—(CP)—Young women who intend to fly ... post-war world are at... new kind of finishing ...

... a comportment ... for the sole bene... of Northwest Airlines, a company which intends ... combine charm and efficiency in ... personnel.

Each student must write a thesis ... graduation—a booklet in which she sets down her aims and ... her daily accomplishments. Here's a sample extract from a ... thesis:

"In building a career, the development of personality is something ... be acquired—a personality does not fall upon you. The stewardess ... successful if she possesses a good personality, and it is her greatest asset."

The writer is a stewardess newly engaged by Camille L. Stein, one of the best-known women executives in aviation. The booklet records the lessons she has learned in the finishing course which Northwest has provided so that, in meeting the public, she may be an impressive representative of the airline.

PHYSICAL FITNESS

There is a physical fitness program, in which the stewardess is taught how to recondition her body if it has noticeable faults; to stand at ease with perfect balance; to walk lightly; to sit without sprawling.

Exercise isn't intended to develop bulging muscles, explains Instructor Zell McConnell, an expert on the handling and developing of career girls. Its purpose, she says, is to provide flexible figures, weight control symmetrical lines, grace, firmness of muscles, perfect proportions. She adds:

"For good posture, one must think tall, walk tall and stretch tall."

There is a lot more to this physical fitness from the "toe tonic" and "foot arch" designed to correct foot troubles, to the "neck nip" to strengthen muscles of the neck and throat.

VALUE OF A SMILE

Keep smiling—that's one of the injunctions, for a smile isn't just a dimple and a gleam of teeth; it's the reflection of a mental attitude.

"If you can't smile," writes the student, a bit waggishly, in her booklet, "try to imitate somebody who can."

The girls are taught the secrets of makeup, first studying the contour of their faces in order to bring out lights and shadows. They are given formulas for certain cosmetics.

They are taught how to keep their hair in condition; to pick their wardrobes; to buy jewelry; to budget their earnings according to the most effective expenditure of available funds.

Stewardesses, explains Miss Stein, are highly qualified even before they come to Northwest Airlines—most of them are college graduates and have held important positions in other fields. But she insists that they take this course so they may achieve the ultimate. For Miss Stein, who is partial to her stewardesses, puts it this way:

"The stewardess is one of the airline's best advertisements."

250 Women Attend Tea

"The war is not over until every boy has been brought home, rehabilitated and assisted in finding a position," said Don Henshaw, of Ottawa, author of the film series, "Canada Carries On", when he addressed a tea meeting held by the National War Finance Committee, Edmonton branch, in the Masonic Temple on Thursday afternoon. More than 250 women were present. The tea was in honor of the women who have done voluntary work at the city stamp bars.

"We must not have the boys riding the rods as they did after the last war," declared the speaker.

Miss Cora Sutter was convener of the tea. Alderman A. Bissett, KC, was chairman and introduced the speaker. Mrs. J. Adair, stamp bar convener thanked the women for their help in the past and asked for continued support.

Mrs. S. R. Keeling was pianist.

Those assisting in serving the guests were: Mrs. Elsie Strange, Mrs. Leona Johnson, Mrs. Jean Thomson, Mrs. Isabel Evans, the Misses Etta Ball, Josephine Stanley and Lillian Turner.

Quilley entertained at bridge when Miss McGregor was presented with a wool bedthrow and bed linen. The Earl of Chester chapter, IODE, entertained at bridge at the Cottage Tea room where the rooms were decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells. Hess Hopeful That Lunacy Will Save Him

By EDWARD V. ROBERTS
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

NUERNBERG, Oct. 12—(BUP)—Rudolf Hess, one-time Nazi deputy Fuehrer, submitted to an exhaustive lunacy test today in an apparent bid to escape punishment as a war criminal on a plea of insanity.

American officials on the United Nations war crimes commission revealed that Hess was being examined by Maj. Douglas Kelly, a U.S. army psychiatrist from San Francisco, Cal.

Kelly, who recently treated Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering for a "narcotics ailment," was understood to be preparing a formal report. It will be submitted to the United Nations war crimes tribunal when Hess goes on trial with a group of other top-flight Nazi leaders now in the Nuernberg jail.

HOPES ESCAPE DEATH

The new development tended to confirm persistent reports that Hess hoped to avoid trial entirely or at least escape a death sentence by pleading insanity.

He had been under constant observation by British alienists since the night in May, 1942, when he parachuted into a lonely Scottish moor and informed English officials that he had come to "save" Britain.

Guarded announcements by British government spokesmen since that time indicated that the beetle-browed Number Two Nazi brought with him a proposal that Britain join Germany in a "holy war" against Russia.

TO MAKE REPORT

A group of British army psychiatrists accompanied Hess from England to Nuernberg for the trial. It was understood that Kelly would compare findings with them and issue a public report on Hess' mental condition, possibly within the next few days.

Gen. de Gaulle Rules Out New Trial For Laval

By MEL MOST

PARIS, Oct. 12—(AP)—Gen. de Gaulle today apparently ruled out a new trial for Pierre Laval, sentenced to death Tuesday for treason.

Asked at a news conference whether he would order a new trial for the former Vichy leader, convicted at a stormy, much-criticized trial for wartime collaboration with the Germans, Gen. de Gaulle replied:

"Certainly not."

The Paris newspaper Liberation said it had information that present plans were to execute Laval Wednesday.

COUNSEL'S CLAIM

Earlier, Laval's counsel said they had important new evidence which would explode the case against him.

The evidence, they said, will prove that Laval, former Vichy chief of government, was arrested by the Germans while plotting to turn his government over to Gen. de Gaulle.

Laval's counsel said documents smuggled out of France and hidden in Switzerland had been found and returned today. These, they said, showed Laval came to Paris at the beginning of August, 1944, to declare it an open city and to have Gen. de Gaulle officially received by a meeting of parliament.

Paris fell to the Allies Aug. 25, and Gen. de Gaulle entered the city the same day.

LAVAL'S CLAIM

Laval's lawyers said the evidence would prove that Laval drove all day and night to Nancy in north-eastern France in order to free Edouard Herriot from German imprisonment and that he returned with Herriot to Paris where he obtained reinstatement for him as president of the chamber of deputies.

The lawyers said that they could prove that Gestapo Chief Himmler personally ordered the arrest of Laval before he could carry through his plan.

The defence counsel said they would present the evidence directly to Gen. de Gaulle, who returned to Paris from Brussels today, and would appeal to him for a new trial for the former Vichy chief of government, now under sentence of death pronounced Tuesday at the end of a tumultuous trial.

During the trial both Laval and his lawyers left the courtroom and refused to be present at the proceedings which Laval had branded a "judical crime."

Confiscate Farben Industrial Empire

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

BERLIN, Oct. 12—(BUP)—Germany's billion-dollar I. G. Farbenindustrie, largest chemical and munitions organization in the world, was ordered confiscated today for reparations, destruction or any other purpose decided upon by the Allied powers.

Confiscation of the chemical combine's 300 plants and all its other assets was ordered by the four-power Allied co-ordinating committee.

Lt. Gen. Lucius Clay, American committee, announced the seizure. He indicated that the German owners of the company would receive no compensation for the properties nor any share in the present or potential profits of its operations.

Before the Magistrate

The clerk of the City Police court sonorously read off the charge. Austin Oxner was charged with being in an intoxicated condition in the city of Edmonton on Oct. 10, . . . and the complainant further saith that . . . and two previous charges followed. At the end of the reading, Oxner was asked to plead guilty or not guilty.

"I haven't heard a word you said", he roared at the clerk.

So once more the city police court resounded to the reading, this time given in a much louder tone of voice.

Oxner finally pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three months imprisonment at hard labor. Harvey Todd, also charged with his third intoxication offence, was sentenced to four months hard labor.

Two youths who "broke" their year's suspended sentence, ordered last July, by stealing a bicycle on Oct. 3 were imprisoned. John W. Hudson for six months hard labor, and Donald Waite for two months. Charge of stealing a number of wrenches against Waite was withdrawn.

Improve Facilities At Grande Prairie

Grande Prairie is spending about $140,000 on improving town facilities this year, according to Percy Thorp, retiring mayor who was in Edmonton Friday on the way to his new home in Victoria.

"We have just finished hard surfacing our three-block long main street, putting in concrete sidewalks, curbing and storm sewers, and work has commenced on a greatly improved water system," he said.

Water for the town's water service has been dependent solely on wells, he explained, but now the town is to have a 200,000,000-gallon reservoir which will be built on the outskirts of the town. Water for the reservoir will be secured from Bear Creek, which will be dammed. The 300-foot earth dam and concrete spillway should be completed about the end of November, the mayor said.

There has been a great increase in Grande Prairie's population, Mr. Thorp said, jumping from 1,500 in 1938 to about 2,500 at present. "And that's permanent population."

The New Western Construction Co., which is doing the work, is apparently experiencing no difficulty with the labor shortage, he said, and the job is going ahead as scheduled.

Doctor Admits Left Patients To Go Hunting

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C., Oct. 12—(CP)—Dr. Donald W. Beach of McBride, B.C., admitted at a coroner's inquest here yesterday that he left three fire victims at the McBride Red Cross outpost hospital to go on a hunting trip.

Two of the fire victims subsequently died and a third is still in critical condition.

The coroner's jury was investigating the death of Mrs. Rose Soucy, 23, who died in hospital at Prince George Oct. 6 two days after a gasoline lamp exploded in her McBride home. Richard Soucy, 2½, died at McBride Oct. 5. Another child is still in critical condition.

TO AWAIT MATRON

The inquest was adjourned until testimony could be heard from Mrs. D. A. Plommer, hospital matron at McBride who has gone to Jasper, Alta., to welcome home a son who has been overseas four years.

In McBride Wednesday another, coroner's jury returned a verdict saying "we feel that as laymen had further medical assistance been rendered by the local doctor" to Richard "he might have had a chance of recovering."

The Prince George inquest was told that British Columbia provincial police had arranged a special "mercy" train to take Dr. John G MacArthur from Prince George to McBride but the train was cancelled when Dr. Beach was taken by speeder to McBride. Dr Beach was on a hunting trip at the time.

DOCTOR'S STATEMENT

Dr. Beach testified that he devoted most of his attention to the children "as they seemed to have a better chance of survival," that he had given "what I considered was adequate treatment—the woman had no chance."

When pressed for his reason for leaving his patients, Dr. Beach conceded he was returning to a hunting trip "but it was more personal than that." asked further, he stated "my boat was in a precarious spot, loaded with supplies (the water rose a couple of feet) there was nobody to take care of it."

"Do you value a boat above human lives," coroner W. M. Skinner asked. Dr. Beach replied thae he had done all he could to alleviate the pain of Mrs. Soucy with sedatives and that her recovery was hopeless.

CRITICISM LODGED

Dr. Macarthur testified Mrs Soucy died half an hour after emergency treatment was undertaken in Prince George hospital.

Six McBride organizations, Red Cross, Legion, Hospital Auxilary, Women's Institute, Elks, and CNR Medical Aid Association, have lodged criticism of Dr Beach with the attorney general's department, CNR officials and the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Machinegun Auto When Refused Meal

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP)—Police said yesterday that two men—dressed as United States soldiers—after being refused food at a roadside restaurant, used a machine gun to "riddle" the owner's automobile Wednesday night. He said the men left in what he thought was an ugly mood, drove a short way down the highway, and then sped back, raking his automobile with gunfire.

2nd Division Units All Leave Europe

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 12—(CP)—Departure of the last of the 2nd Canadian Division units and draft for the United Kingdom en route home yesterday leaves only Maj. Gen. A. B. Matthews' own headquarters to move from Holland. This movement will be completed Oct. 13.

Then the 2nd Division, whose blue identification patch has been famous since the Dieppe Raid of 1942, becomes a thing of history.

(Gen. Matthews himself sailed Thursday from Southampton aboard the liner Queen Mary, with elements of his formation.)

The next to move to Britain will be 7,000 troops drawn from the Canadian forces in the Netherlands, the Canadian Army occupation force in Germany, and men of the lines of communications and installations whose repatriation will scale the Army down to the 110-point level.

DEFLEMING—In Loving Memory of Bobby Defleming who passed away October 12th, 1944.

He has gone to be an angel,
Secure in our Father's care,
And his dear little feet now patter along
The beautiful streets up there.
—Ever remembered by Mummie and Daddy and Sister Marline.

FOLEY—In Loving Memory of Mother, Mrs. Annie Victoria Foley, who passed away on October 12th, 1943.

Three little words, "Forget Me not"
Don't seem much, but mean a lot
Just a memory, fond and true
To show, dear mother, we think of you.
—Ever remembered by Russell, Irene and family.

POJALOW—In Loving Memory of Mrs. Mary Pojalow who passed away October 12, 1944.

What would I not give to clasp her hand,
Her dear, sweet face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
That meant so much to me.
You left behind an aching heart,
That loved you most sincere;
I never did, nor never will Forget you, mother dear.
—Ever remembered by her loving Husband, her son George, Marie, Georgiana and Claudette.

To Execute Nazi General As Criminal

By ROBERT MEYER
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

ROME, Oct. 12—(BUP)—A five-man American military commission today sentenced German Gen. Anton Dostler to death before a firing squad for ordering the summary execution of 15 American soldiers in violation of the Geneva convention.

The court, in a precedent-setting verdict that may affect hundreds of German officers, dismissed a defence argument that Dostler merely was carrying out the command of a superior officer, in this case Marshal Albert Kesselring, then German commander in Italy.

Witnesses at the trial testified that Dolster had countermanded the order originally, but had been obliged to obey at risk of court martial when Kesselring's headquarters insisted on the execution.

The 15 American soldiers, members of the OSS, parachuted into Northern Italy to carry out sabotage behind the German lines. The prosecution pointed out that they were wearing American uniforms at the time of their capture and were entitled to treatment as ordinary prisoners of war.

Instead, the soldiers were executed without trial.

Canada Joining Japan Commission

OTTAWA, Oct. 12—(CP)—Justice Minister St. Laurent, acting secretary of state for external affairs, said yesterday in the Commons that Canada has accepted an invitation to participate in the Far Eastern Advisory Commission set up by the United States, Britain, China and Russia to deal with matters in Japan.

Replying to John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, Mr. St. Laurent said the United States had asked Canada Oct. 8 to participate in the commission. The invitation was accepted yesterday.

L. B Pearson, Canadian ambassador to the United States, would represent Canada at the initial meeting of the commission in Washington, Oct. 23.

craft from Manila Bay at the start of hostilities. For on that first day of war all major surface ships started south.

CALLED CLARK FIELD

As soon as I learned that Hickam had been bombed, I called Clark Field, but they had been informed. Johnny Pugh came over to my quarters about dawn. I gave him the list of desperately needed ammunition and equipment and told him to rush it to Manila.

"And while you're down there find Tom Dooley and send him back at once," I ordered. Tom was in Manila saying goodbye to a pretty English girl who was sailing for Australia.

Shortly before 9 a.m. MacArthur's headquarters informed me that Baguio, the Philippine summer capital, 95 miles above Stotsenburg, had been attacked by Jap bombers — my first real knowledge that the Jap is no respecter of non-military targets. MacArthur's headquarters warned me to take every precaution against a possible Jap paratroop landing at Clark Field.

I immediately deployed Col. Clinton Pierce's Twenty-Sixth Cavalry to the east of the field. I had no infantry available so I put my little battery of pack artillery at the west end of the big parade ground at Stotsenburg, and instructed the gunners to set their fuses to zero and load with shrapnel, so that they would be able to rake the parade ground if necessary.

LEAVES HEADQUARTERS

After using the public phone system to issue the necessary orders to my field commanders, I left my headquarters and went over to my house to direct the packing and storing of some personal effects and to start packing my field equipment. By 12:30 I was ready. I walked out on my porch, headed for my headquarters.

Suddenly the thunder of a flight of approaching planes hit my ears. I ran down on the lawn just as they roared over the backdrop of the Zambales mountains. There were about 80 of them, bombers mainly, but also dive bombers and fighters. They swept over Stotsenburg, shaking the ground, and let their bombs go on Clark Field — most of whose bombers were on the ground.

The Jap came back to Clark Field with his biggest bombs. The very air of Stotsenburg rattled with concussion. In the midst of the almost uncontested raid my Filipino boy, Feliemon San Pedro, ran startled from the house, his eyes like big black marbles. In his frenzy he had put on my steel helmet.

"Mother of God, general, what shall I do?" he shouted.

"Go get me a bottle of beer," I yelled. It seemed to help him. I know the beer helped me.

WATCHED THE ACK-ACK FIRE

I drained it, handed him the bottle and walked over to my headquarters. The No. 1 gun of the battery protecting the parade grounds stood quite close to my headquarters. I went over and stood near it, watching the black bursts of our modest anti-aircraft fire trying to follow the Jap bombers.

And I was standing there when I heard the moist impact of metal against flesh and bone. I turned and saw one of No. 1's gunners falling near me. His face was a bloody blob. A bomb splinter had streaked all the way over from Clark Field, whose edge was 1,200 yards from us, and hit him in the lower forehead, just below his helmet.

Capt. Fitch, the battery commander, and I leaned over the boy. His face was a sight.

"Get this man to the doctor," I ordered.

Fitch and someone else put their hands under the lad, but the boy then stirred, opened his eyes and wiped a dirty hand across his face.

"No," the boy said, sharply. "Stay by my gun . . . stay by my gun."

DROVE PAST FIELD

While this was happening, Tom Dooley drove up with a screeching of brakes and jumped out of his car. I saw from the direction in which he came that he must have driven right past Clark Field.

"Tom, you damned fool, you didn't drive past Clark during this bombing, did you?" I shouted at him angrily.

"Sure, sir," he said. "You sent me orders to report to you as fast as I could, and I was worse afraid of you than I was of those bombs."

I stalked inside my headquarters, with Tom at my heels, and quickly wrote out the order which gave him, and the young gunner, Silver Stars. I guess they were the first decorations of the Pacific war.

We were in a war for which we were no more prepared than a child is prepared to fight a cruel and seasoned professional pugilist.

(Tomorrow: The Jap horde arrives on Luzon.)

An efficient man is Gen. Wainwright, on the war front or in peace time. Here, while flying home from Japan, he works on his own story of Bataan, Corregidor and prison camps, smokes a cigar and finishes his coffee.

Hitting the Japs in the sky . . . a battery of three-inch anti-aircraft guns get on the job as enemy bombers attack Fort Mills, on Corregidor Island, for five hours.

One of the things Gen. Wainwright longed for while he was imprisoned by the Japanese was a good cigar—at any price—and here he enjoys one while flying home after his liberation in Manchuria. He utilized this trip to make notes for "This Is My Story".

Saskatchewan Ready For Bill Challenge

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Saskatchewan is prepared to meet the challenge to its legislation, Premier T. C. Douglas said here yesterday in an interview.

A petition of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and Dominion Loan and Mortgage Association now before federal authorities seeks disallowance of the Mineral Taxation Act, Farm Security Act and Local Government Board (Special Powers) Act.

Mr. Douglas said here if disallowance goes through, Saskatchewan will only turn around and find some other way of getting what it wants.

He said the principle of disallowance should only be practised when a province invades Dominion territory or when it might jeopardize federal interests.

The Road Ahead

representatives. That is our own fault.

If we elect men who no platforms to offer then we are in effect turning over our municipal and civic governments into the hands of our civil servants. For a man without a platform will tend to be a "yes-man" for the civil servants.

NO IDEAS OF OWN

As he has no ideas of his own he will be only too willing to accept the plans and ideas of the civil servants—and their plans and ideas are bound to reflect their self interest, instead of the interests of the public they are hired to serve. That is why one hears so many complaints everywhere about the independent attitude displayed by many civil servants—they are used to giving orders to elected representatives—instead of receiving orders.

We do not need parties in civic or municipal governments. In fact we are better off if we do not have parties, because, if we want efficient government in Alberta we must have civic officials who can get along agreeably both with the Social Credit government in the province and the Liberal administration at Ottawa. They must also be free to argue and disagree with both of these administrations. That disagreement must be based on common sense arguments — not on political prejudices.

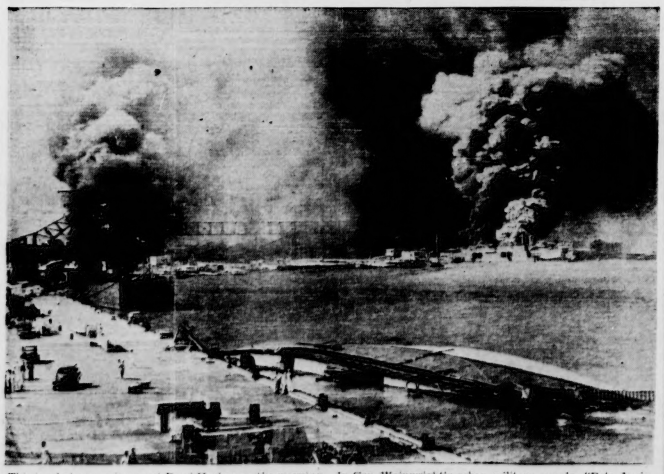

We need too a balance in these governments. We need men with experience, men with experience which only years of public service can give, so that they can guide the government through storms and past hazards. We need too young men of vision and courage to provide a driving and progressive force. Men who will fight for what they believe to be right and necessary. We need these young men, too, so that we can be sure of having experienced and able men in the future. Mostly we need men of honest, sincere purpose.

DUTY IS TO VOTE

So, Mr. John Citizen, and Mrs. Citizen, and Miss Citizen — your duty is to get out and vote — and vote intelligently. When you mark that ballot you must know why you have selected the men or women that you have. You can only do that if you have examined the qualifications of all candidates. This is your government—it is going to determine the course of your future—make sure you do your share to choose the right men.

The news came by wire . . . Gen. Wainwright was awakened by a subordinate on the phone who informed him of the Pearl Harbor sneak attack by the Japs, which is partly shown in this photo of the bombing of Hickam Field, adjoining the great United States Naval Base in Hawaii.

This is what was going on at Pearl Harbor on the morning of December 7, 1941, when Gen. Wainwright's phone rang at Fort Stotsenburg on Northern Luzon, Philippine Islands. In Gen. Wainwright's sober, military words, "Pete Irwin told me that the battleship line at Pearl Harbor, and also our big Hickam Field air base, had been heavily bombed."

New Examples of Jap Barbarism Related by Liberated Prisoners

VANCOUVER, Oct. 12.—(CP)—The atomic bomb that dropped on Nagasaki sent a sheet of flame 3,000 feet into the air, survivors of the bombing said in interviews here yesterday after arriving on the HMS Implacable, 31,000-ton Royal Navy aircraft carrier.

The big flat-top carried three Canadians, 2,127 British repatriates and a crew of 1,600 officers and men.

Three of the British repatriates were prisoner-slaves in a Nagasaki dockyard and were four to six miles away when the bomb exploded.

Chief Petty Officer Fred Thompson of Stockton-on-Tees, England, said "the Japs stopped beating us after the atomic bomb was dropped."

Chief Petty Officer J. C. Robins of Plymouth, England, said the concussion was terrible in the tunnels where he was working six miles from Nagasaki.

Thomas Pickles, a British soldier said there was "terrific heat at the moment of the explosion."

Canadians aboard the Implacable were Pte. William Marks, Amherst, NS; Cpl. William Yeareye, Hamilton, Ont.; and Sgt. Donald Rice, Verdun, Que.

New examples of Japanese barbarism were brought to light by British prisoners aboard the Implacable.

24,000 MEN DIE

In one of the most inhuman stories of brutality brought to light up to this time, officers and men stated that from 10,000 to 24,000 British, Australian and Dutch prisoners of war died as a result of ill-treatment during the building of a railroad between Bangkok in Thailand to Moulmein in Burma.

"In addition to 20,000 white men, more than 60,000 natives perished from cholera, dysentry, bubonic plague, malaria and starvation," Capt. A. Webb, padre of the Federated Malay States Volunteers, stated.

"Sick men were forced to work; some were carried to work on stretchers," he said. "Those who fell down from weakness were beaten with clubs and crowbars. Worst of all was the almost entire lack of medical treatment. Men were just left to die at the wayside."

PRISON SHIP HORROR

Cpl. C. H. Townsend, 2nd Cambridgeshire Regiment, captured at Singapore, had a grim tale to tell of a Japanese prison ship leaving Manila for Japan.

"What happened was that 1,750 men were packed into the hold so tight we had to stand up. Nobody could breathe. Everyone just went crazy. They were screaming and yelling and trampling one another like madmen. Thirty to forty men died that first night. My best pal died in my arms."

"The second day out we were sunk by American aircraft in the Langayan Gulf, 200 or 300 yards from shore. Another 500 or 600 were drowned or killed. When we finally got to Japan there were only 500 of us left."

The cocoanut palm trees fringing Palm Beach (and from which the resort island derives its name) are the result of a wrecking of a Spanish cargo of cocoanuts off the Atlantic coast in 1878.

Rye Futures Gain On Winnipeg Mart

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12—(CP)—Rye futures prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange today rallied from earlier declines on commission house buying and other demand of a modest character which found offerings light. Trading was dull and there was little outside interest in the market in view of the holiday in the United States.

Final prices were 1-1⅛ higher with Oct. $1.72b, Dec. $1.68⅛, May $1.67½, and July $1.59¼-⅜.

Export business in Canadian oats of about 300,000 bushels to Eire was reported, but there was no evidence of any sales of wheat.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12—Previous records for passenger traffic over Trans-Canada Air Lines were broken during August when revenue passenger miles flown by the company passed the ten million mark for the first time, W. F. English, vice-president, announced today.

In the 31 day period, Trans-Canada Air Lines flew 10,585,563 passenger miles. This compares with 9,998,254 for the month of July, 1945, and with 7,617,436 revenue passenger miles for July, 1944.

Between Jan. 1, 1945, and Aug. 31, 1945, TCA flew 69,925,702 revenue passenger miles. This compares with 57,228,961 for the first eight months of 1944, an increase of 22 per cent.

Total passenger miles flown by the company since its inception in 1938 now amount to nearly 400 million passenger miles.

Troops Unload Food as Dock Strike Spreads

LONDON, Oct. 12—(CP)—Troops were ordered into the great, seven-mile-long Liverpool docks today and began unloading 12,000 tons of urgently required foodstuffs from five freighters and nine coastal vessels as the paralyzing British strike of 50,000 dockers raised a mounting menace to delivery of the country's meagre rations.

The strike spread to Edinburgh, where 1,000 Scottish dockers quit work in sympathy with their striking fellow workers.

In London, Strike Leader Thomas Powell warned the huge port would be tied up completely by Monday unless a settlement is reached over the week-end.

IGNORE UNION PLEAS

Most major ports already were throttled as stevedores ignored return-to-work pleas of union leaders, despite a government statement that negotiations could be conducted only through regular channels between union officials and dock owners.

The spreading stoppage has tied up 400 ships, many laden with food for short-rationed Britons. The strikers are seeking a daily wage of 25 shillings ($5.50). Their present rate ranges from 16 to 24 shillings.

A possibility that the shutdown would spread to the south coast was raised by a spokesman for a delegation of workers from Southampton, where thousands of American and Canadian soldiers have been embarking for home. He told a meeting of London strikers: "Southampton is willing from noon today to back you up all the way."

Camp Attendant Denies Turning Dogs on Captives

LUENEBURG, Oct. 12—(BUP)—Juana Borman, 52-year-old Oswiecim concentration camp attendant, denied today that she ever set dogs on the inmates.

She admitted she had a dog while she was at Oswiecim, but said she never used it against the prisoners.

The Borman woman testified in her own defence at the trial of 45 Nazi guards and commanders of the Oswiecim and Belsen camps.

She denied also that she ever used rubber truncheons to beat prisoners, as earlier witnesses had testified.

Thanks for Waiting Until You Could See the

Circulex Therapeutic Unit

Demonstrated at EATON'S Today and Saturday

"CIRCULEX"

Now is the Time

To have the specially trained factory demonstrator explain the many fine features of this health-building unit. It is said that it was designed by a workingman who had suffered from a serious illness. The constant vibration of the machine upon which he was working following the illness, brought the muscles back to normal. Many since have thanked this little known man. Especially those who wanted relief from arthritic, neuritic, rheumatic pains also varicose veins, sinus troubles, constipation, chronic headaches and insomnia.
